California Quakes Injure 24 and Knock out Power and Gas Lines

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP)— At least 24 persons were injured by two earthquakes that ruined two houses hee Wednesday night, knocked out electrical power and broke gas and water mains.

No fatalities were reported.

A third tremor, milder than the first two, was recorded between 5:27 and 5:28 a.m. today.

The last quake in Northern California to cause much damage hit Daly City, near San Francisco, in 1957. It had a richter rating of 5.7. There was a 5.8 quake at Hollister in 1961, although not as much damage resulted.

The tremors centered at Santa Rosa, 60 miles north of San Francisco, but were felt as far south as Gilroy, 75 miles south of San Francisco.

A 20- foot wide section of brick wall fell from the third story of the Miramar Bar to the street, heavily damaging a parked automobile.

Pacific Gas & Electric Co. said electrical power was off for eight minutes in the city of nearly 50,000 residents. The utility called in emergency crews and had 50 men shutting off leaking gas mains. One small fire was extinguished before there was serious damage.

Water from broken pipes caused damage in one department store.

Injured persons were taken to three hospitals in the Santa Rosa area. Most suffered cuts caused by broken glass, although there was one report of a broken neck.

One house was jolted four feet off its foundations and another was so badly rocked that it probably will have to be demolished.

Seismologists at the University of California in Berkeley said the first quake was at 9:56 p.m. and the second at 11:19 p.m. and that both registered at between 5.5 and 5.6 on the Richter scale.

The Richter scale is logarithmic, each higher number representing 31 times the energy of the preceding number.

In 1906, the San Francisco earthquake registered at 8.25.

Police, California highway patrol officers and Sonoma County sheriff's deputies sealed off a 15- square block area in downtown Santa Rosa to stop an outburst of looting through broken windows in a number of stores.

Jake Horner, Civilian Defense chief, told of seeing three 50-foot high metal flag poles, which were 10 feet apart, whipping so strongly they hit each other.

"They were really clanging," he recalled.

Countdown for Aleutian Nuclear Blast Continues Despite Chorus of Protests

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Despite a chorus of protest the countdown continued for the U.S. nuclear test today in the remote Aleutians.

On windswept Amchitka Island, 1,400 miles southwest of Anchorage, scientists and technicians readied monitoring devices and television cameras to record the one- megaton blast, equal to the detonation of one million tons of TNT.

Although some scientists feared the big blast might trigger an earthquake and tidal wave, "We are very optimistic of a safe and successful experiment," Robert Miller, operations manager for the Atomic Energy Commission, told newsmen Wednesday.

International objections to the test reached a climax with demonstrations along the U.S. - Canadian border involving more than 7,000 students in British Columbia alone. Spersons were arrested by police at the Ambassador Bridge between Windsor and Detroit.

The explosion was scheduled for 6 p.m. EDT.

The AEC said weather conditions appeared favorable for the observer planes set to fly over the desolate, 42- mile - long Aleutian island 700 miles from the Soviet Union's Kamchatka Peninsula.

The nuclear device was buried 4,000 feet below the tundra in a shaft drilled in a solid volcanic rock. Twenty-eight miles away about 130 persons gathered in a concrete bunker to check the effects of the explosion.

One television camera was zeroed in on a known earth fault that cuts through the island. Another was focused on a pen of seven sea otters 4,500 feet from the blast site to record the effect on the animals.

Pens on the beach 14,000 feet away from the test contained more sea animals.

Other observers were on the carrier USS Princeton, two destroyers and a number of research vessels.

First after - blast examination of the ground around the site was expected late Thursday or Friday, depending on conditions.

Fears of an earthquake and tidal wave similar to the 1964 temblor that claimed 113 lives in Alaska and caused damage around the Pacific rim prompted most of the objection to the blast. Other opponents simply oppose the explosion of nuclear devices.

The AEC conceded the possibility of an earthquake, but said the chances were minimal.

Japan and Canada both damaged by the 1964 quake- filed formal protests with the U.S. government. Canada said it would submit a bill for any damage.

Scores of others, both in and out of government, have voiced objections.

Gov. Keith Miller said again Wednesday he believed the test safe and necessary for the country's security.

Meet Shows Cracks in Unity of Moslem World

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The recent summit conference of Moslem leaders in Morocco groped for areas of unity, but it served also to illuminate differences which divided the Islamic world.

Kings, presidents and ministerial delegates of 24 predominantly Moslem nations met at Rabat primarily to discuss an event which made the Islamic world shudder with indignation: the fire in Jerusalem's Al Aksah Mosque, one of Islam's holiest shrines. They also planned to discuss Israel's annexation of what had been the Arab section of Jerusalem.

Such Arab and Moslem conferences in the past have run into conflicting national interests among the states represented, and into clashes involving differences among Arab leaders themselves.

Islam, one of the world's greatest religions, has more than a half billion members around the world. It predominates in many nations occupying a belt all the way from North Africa's Atlantic coast to Southeast Asia. The term "Islam" derives from ARabic roots meaning peace and submission to divine will. But Islam has known little peace.

The Koran, the body of revelations of the Prophet Mohammed, regards war as abnormal and a last resort. But Islam's history is dotted with conquests and holy wars for most of its 1,300 years. The Sword of Islam swept all across north Africa into Spain, into Southeast Europe and Central Asia. That was Arab conquest. Arab decline began four centuries ago.

Moslems -- the word means surrender to Allah -- spread as far east as sprawling Indonesia, where Islam is the official religion. There are Moslem minorities, some big, some tiny, in most of the world's nations. Soviet Central Asia and Red China's Sinkiang and Yunnan, for example, have big Moslem minorities.

Arabs predominate in lands with a total population of more than 100 million. Little Lebanon is carefully balanced politically between its Christian and Arab populations. Algeria is made up of Arabs and non-Arab Berbers. Arabs of the north dominate the bracks of Sudan. There are many Arabs in East Africa. Nations where Arabs predominate are Iraq, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Muscat-Oman and the sheikhdoms, Yemen, Jordan, Syria, the United Arab Republic, Libya, Algeria, Tunisia and Morocco.

Non-Arab Moslem states have in excess of 300 million population. In addition, India has 60 million Moslems, more than most of the other nations with Islamic majorities. Principal non-Arab nations where Moslems predominate are Pakistan, Indonesia, Iran, Afghanistan, Malaysia, Mauritania, Singapore, Tansania, Turkey, Somali and Senegal.

Complications arise because some Moslem nations have relations with Israel, which others regard as their worst enemy. Israel has diplomatic relations with Iran, Malaysia, Mauritania, Singapore, Tanzania, Turkey, Somali and Senegal, but not with any of the Middle East or North African Moslem Arab nations. In addition, Israel has cordial relations with India, but lacks them with Pakistan, Indonesia and Afghanistan.

Lack of unity among the Arab states themselves has become celebrated over the years since the first Arab-Israeli conflict of 1948 - 49. This disunity has stood in the way of a Zionist state.

Though Islam provides the Moslem nations with a strong unifying factor, political oneness among them seems even less likely than over-all Arab unity.

Nixon Pressed to Drop Haynsworth

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has come under mounting pressure from his own party in the Senate, reportedly including the GOP's No. 2 leader, to pull back his nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth to the Supreme Court.

Congressional sources indicated that Senate Republican Whip Robert P. Griffin suggested to the President during his Tuesday meeting with GOP congressional leaders that Haynsworth's name come down.

A spokesman for Griffin declined Wednesday either to confirm or deny the report. The spokesman said Griffin considered any conversation he had with the President as strictly confidential.

Griffin spearheaded the successful fight last year against President Johnson's attempt to appoint Abe Fortas chief justice.

There was no doubt other Senate Republicans were anxious to see the appointment of Haynsworth, now chief judge of the 4th U.S. Court of Appeals, withdrawn.

The only Negro senator, Massachusetts Republican Edward W. Brooke, Wednesday released a letter he had written to Nixon urging the President to withdraw the nomination or face an "embarrassingly" close vote and possibly even defeat.

Brooke became the first Republican senator to publicly urge withdrawal of the name and the first senator of either party to actually predict the nomination might be defeated.

Brooke declined to say how many committed anti-Haynsworth votes he came up with in his own nose count.

But he said he had found a substantial number of Republicans willing to break with tradition and go against their President.

"It's more than any five or six, I'll tell you that," he said.

An aide to Brooke put the total somewhat higher, saying "more than 10, or enough of a trend so the vote could be very substantial."

It was understood that Brooke acted without consulting the Senate Republican leadership and had hoped to jar some colleagues, who have been privately critical, into taking a public stand.

One that spoke up right away, was New York's Charles Goodell, currently the Senate GOP's leading maverick.

"A bold and courageous move," said Goodell who stopped short of seconding the call for withdrawal or even pledging his own vote against Haynsworth.

There was no immediate comment from the White House on the Griffin report or the Brooke letter.

However, there were various reports about Nixon's reaction to Griffin's suggestion.

U.S. Combat Toll Hits 2-Year Low

SAIGON (AP) — The lowest weekly combat toll among Americans in two years was announced today by the U.S. Command, reflecting a three-week lull on the battlefield.

An official summary said 96 Americans were killed in action during the seven- day period ending at midnight last Saturday- a drop from 135 the previous week and the lowest weekly toll since the week ending Aug. 12, 1967, when 82 Americans died.

While the American death toll decreased, South Vietnamese troop casualties rose from 297 to 308 last week. Since the week ending May 10, South Vietnamese casualties have been consistently higher than American combat deaths, which many officials say is a result of "Vietnamizing" the war.

Vote Yes to Create Jobs, Beaird Urges

James Beaird, president of the Chamber of Commerce, expressed concern today about a lack of jobs that results in the loss of young people to other areas.

"It is reported that 45 per cent of the graduates of the Sikeston public Schools enroll in college," he said. "If our young people leave Sikeston to acquire employment in another area, then we lose our investment in them and we also lose their purchasing power. We also lose the leadership they can provide in community activities."

His statement was made during an interview on the Oct. 21 vote on a proposal to issue $600,000 in industrial revenue bonds to build a manufacturing plant for Keystone Consolidated Industries, Inc. The firm has announced plans to open a National Lock factory.

With this in mind, Beaird said, "Oct. 21 is one of the most important dates in the history of our city. Many communities throughout the country would be thrilled with the opportunity to vote overwhelmingly for a proposition to bring new jobs to their community. The degree to which we approve this revenue bond issuecould well determine the future of our community. It behooves every citizen to get behind this important project."

He said a vote for the issue will show new and old industry that Sikeston appreciates the hundreds of jobs that have been made available through the years.

"I have faith and confidence that Sikeston will give the revenue bond issue the greatest margin of victory that has been given to any project that has been before us. What Sikeston does, does make a difference," Beaird said.

Seven Hurt in Three Accidents

Three highway accidents resulted in seven injuries Wednesday.

James David Marshall, 42, Steele, driver of a 1967 Ford pickup truck, collided with a 1958 GMC tractor trailer, driven by George Middleton, 33, Risco, the state patrol reported.

The accident occurred Wednesday at 2:10 p.m. on route U, four miles west of Caruthersville.

Brakes of the Middleton truck apparently failed, causing his vehicle to slide into the path of the Ford pickup, the patrol said.

Marshall received a fractured right leg and was taken to a Memphis hospital.

Middleton received a bump on his head and was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial hospital in Hayti, for observation.

Four received minor injuries at 8:05 a.m. on a township road one half mile west of Cardwell.

A 1969 Ford pickup truck driven by Floyd Arthur Estopy, 62, Rector, Ark., and a 1969 Ford, driven by Anna Marie Clark, 26, Cardwell met at an intersection. The Estopy pickup truck was struck in the right side by the Clark car, causing the Clark car to leave the road and strike a utility pole.

Mrs. Clark received cuts and bruises. Three children in her car, David Dillon, 7, Dawn Dillon, 6, and David Clark, 5, all of Cardwell, received minor injuries.

All were treated at a Cardwell clinic.

George Stevens, 65, Annapolis, was injured at 4:45 p.m. on highway 34, one mile west of Patterson.

He was driving a 1965 Chevrolet pickup truck when he lost control while speeding around a curve. The truck ran across the road, struck a utility pole, and went through a fence.

He received a concussion and was taken to the Doctors hospital in Poplar Bluff.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
UNATTENDED CHILDREN COURT DISASTER

Do you sometimes risk the lives of your children by leaving them home alone?

According to the National Fire Protection Association, about one of every three children who died in fires this year was not under competent, mature supervision at the time of the tragedy. Thus several hundred young lives are taken annually.

As a parent, never - never! - leave your children alone at home.

When you go out, take the youngsters with you, leave them at the house of someone you know and whose judgment you trust, or choose a reliable, intelligent person to babysit in your home.

Make it clear to the "sitter" that you expect her - or him - to stay awake and alert, keep children from activities which could be dangerous, and be on guard for suspicious noises, odors, heat or other indications of an emergency situation.

Show your babysitter through the house and explain your family fire escape plan with its pre-determined alternate routes out of each room - especially the bedrooms.

Post important telephone numbers - fire, police, doctor, and the number at which you can be reached.

Emphasize that in case of fire her first job is to get everyone out of the house safely and keep them out. Then make sure she knows how to summon the fire department by using a neighbor's or a public telephone or the fire alarm box.

Remember that "luck" is the poorest babysitter of them all.

"Call them secret sessions, not executive meetings," says Bernard Lyons, Port Huron (Mich.) Times publisher. "We find that readers don't really understand what an executive session is. But they sure understand what 'secret' means."

Right.

And we believe consistent reporting that secret sessions are being conducted beats passing "open meeting" statutes all to hollow. Win the statute and reporters will still be battling closed sessions. But tell the public that their elected officials are meeting in secret, and forces go to work that make laws seem puny by comparison.

PAPER GOLD IN THE MAKING

The annual meetings of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund begin in Washington on Monday (Sept. 29) and run through the following Friday.

Paper gold will come from the meeting of free world money men in Washington. Approval is all but assured of a new system of international accounts. The 112 International Monetary Fund governors, who are typically finance ministers of the member nations, will vote on a proposal that was started at a meeting of the money men in Rio de Janeiro two years ago.

The plan calls for creation of Special Drawing Rights (SDRs) designed to "meet the need, as and when it arises, for a supplement to existing reserve assets." An amendment to the IMF Articles of Agreement was worked out last July by the so-called Group of Ten, linking the Common Market nations (except Luxembourg) with the United States, Britain, Canada, Japan, and Sweden. Switzerland also joined in the meeting.

Pierre-Paul Schwitzer, French managing director of the IMF, on Sept. 24 formally asked his board of directors to "activate" nearly $10 billion in Special Drawing Rights in the next three years. Approval by the directors in Washington is considered a pro forma exercise.

The SDR is a new form of currency that will never be minted. It has no backing except the faith of the world's trading powers. SDRs will supplement gold as the ultimate resource fo;purchasing foreign currencies. This will be their only real value, as it is gold's only real value.

The drawing rights will apply to a special fund to be established within the IMF. They will be distributed, in annual amounts, to all IMF members in porportion to their quotas or subscriptions in the fund. A nation's quota is based on its population, volume of world trade, and national income.

Schweitzer proposes a distribution of $3.5 billion in SDRs the first year and of $3 billion each in the two succeeding years. The United States would get a little more than $700 million the first year. Critics of the SDRs scheme have called it morally unacceptable, inasmuch as the biggest share of the new drawing rights would be earmarked for the world's wealthiest countries.

The new government of France, forced by speculators to devalue the france, has formally endosed the plan for the creation of SDRs. Under President De Gaulle, French money men had criticized the paper gold scheme as a dangerous device. But the French cabinet on Sept. 24 authorized Finance Minister Valery Giscard D'Estaing to support the establishment of the new international paper currency.

On the same day, Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger ordered the closing of West German currency markets to stop speculation on the upward revaluation of the D-Mark soon after Sept. 28 elections. Hobart Rowen, financial editor of the Washington POST, reports that what the influential countries at the IMF meeting "really want is a 'dignified way' for the German mark to be appreciated."

Europe has rather successfully weathered recent devaluations of the British pound and the French franc. Looking forward, the TIMES of London states: "Sterling has suffered as much as any other currency, and more than most, from the rigidities of the present (world monetary) system, and it is in Britain's interest that the system should be improved." Indeed, it is in the interest of all trading nations.

THE WILSON DISABILITY

"The President is paralyzed." These were the words used 50 years ago Thursday, Oct. 2, by the White House physician after examining President Woodrow Wilson. The President had been brought back to Washington hastily a week earlier after collapsing from physical and emotional exhaustion at Pueblo, Colo., during a country-wide tour to win popular support for the League of Nations.

After his October 1919 stroke, Wilson was for many weeks incapable of transacting official business. "Nor for months," states the DICTIONARY OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY, "could he undertake any effort, physical or mental, that required initiative." Until his term of office expired in 1921, Wilson lived in a sick-room, emerging only for recreation or purely formal occasions. He died, "tired of swimming upstream," on Feb. 3, 1924.

The issue of presidential disability raised by the Wilson tragedy, and by a series of illnesses to President Eisenhower, was not satisfactorily settled until two years ago. The 25th Amendment to the Constitution, providing for continuity of presidential responsibilities in the event of presidential disability, was formally certified on Feb. 10, 1967, following ratification by the required 38 states.

If the President informs Congress that he is unable to perform his duties, the Vice President will become Acting President until the President can resume his responsibilities. If the Vice President and a majority of the Cabinet, or other body designated by Congress, find the President to be incapacitated, the Vice President will become Acting President until the President informs Congress that his disability has ended. Congress is given 21 days under the Amendment to resolve any dispute over the President's disability. The difference between 50 years ago and now is that the government can deal effectively and quickly with a health crisis that could paralyze not just one man but a whole nation.

Nothing could be more untrue: they are fighting. They are adopting a tactic specifically prescribed by Lenin to delay the crises while demoralizing and weakening the enemy. To our minds international conferences and international negotiations are so completely means for ending conflict that we are blind to the fact that they may be and, in the hands of experts, are equally adapted to continuing it. In the present century the Soviet state has perfected the use of negotiation, including negotiation by mass conference, as a method of warfare."

As a native North Dakotan, I am forced to admit that the image of my state leaves something to be desired.

Foreigners—that is, non-North Dakotans—few of whom have ventured into the state, regard it as a bleak, barren, treeless Siberia where it gets 100 below in the winter, 200 above in the summer, and snow drifts are mistaken for mountains.

(Fellow North Dakotans: I know it's not true.)

Persons seeking work with The Associated Press who have indicated on their applications a willingness to work "anywhere," have even recoiled at a job offer in my home state, saying by "anywhere" they meant "anywhere but North Dakota."

It has remained for an old newspaper colleague of mine, Ferd Froeschle, now advertising director for a big manufacturer tucked away in a tiny North Dakota town, to set them straight.

Tongue firmly in cheek, Froeschle has prepared, as a gimmick for his employer, a "Modern Guide to North Dakota." Whether it boosts sales for the Melroe Co. of Gwinner, which makes front-end loaders and the like, it is likely to cause a stirring in the graves of such legendary North Dakota folk heroes as Gen. George Armstrong Custer and Sitting Bull.

Froeschle's guide, a booklet replete with wood-cuts, goes like this:

"You've been wondering if it's true about the howling blizzards and the 40-below zero temperatures and the dust storms and the Indian massacres ... Of course it's true. That's what keeps out the riff-raff."

He lists historic dates:

"1851—First North Dakota post office was established at Pembina, Fur traders promptly began complaining about ZIP code service."

"1874—First U.S. Weather Bureau established at Bismarck. First annual weathermen's picnic rained out."

"1966—First 200 milliwatt lignite-fired steam-powered electric plant went on the line. About 48,000 kerosene lanterns went on sale the next day."

"1968—Melroe Manfacturing Co. changed name to Melroe Co. Only two employes could spell 'manufacturing' and they were sick a lot."

Historical notes from the guide:

"Legend has it that the Vikings may have entered the Red River Valley ... in one of their explorations. Lending credence to the theory was the finding of dozens of Copenhagen snuff cans along the river bank."

"Railroad service—Northern Pacific ... and Great Northern ... compete ... especially in the area of which one can block a street the longest time."

Points of interest:

"Ft. Ransom historical site—Two saloons and the Sons of Norway Hall. Clientele is interchangable."

"Red River Valley—So fertile discarded hubcaps have been known to grow roots."

"North Dakota State University—located in Fargo. No. 1 small college football team in the nation. Over past few years, NDSU's Pennsylvania football players have consistently beaten U. of North Dakota's Pennsylvania football players. State U. also has classes."

"Bald Hill Dam—north of Valley City. One of several North Dakota flood control dams operated by the U.S. Army Engineers for the purpose of creating floods at their own convenience."

"Continental Divide—Not your usual, run-of-the-mill, north-south Continental Divide. In North Dakota, it runs crossways, giving the state a sort of Oriental flavor and a bad list to starboard."

"Well, did you fight back?"

"No," the boy answered.

NEWSPAPER ADVERSTISING is pretty much like running a furnace. You've got to keep on shoveling coal. Once you stop stoking, the fire goes out. It is strange that some people's imagination cannot encompass this fact.

You may not be selling gum, but your furnace works the same as Mr. Wrigley's did. No coal, No fire; no fire, no sales; no sales, no profits.

BEER CAN: AID TO SCIENCE

Oceanographers are using a revolutionary new method to study undersea geology off the coast of Baja California, Mexico-digging up flip-top beer cans.

According to the Newsletter of the National Oceanographic Data Center, beer cans, which had been thrown overboard by Mexican fishermen, were found buried under several inches of sediment.

Since the scientists know the approximate dates when flip-top cans first appeared in the area, they can easily determine the rate at which sediment is building up on the ocean floor.

The new technique is called "beerography."

CZECHOSLOVAKIA, ONE YEAR LATER

On August 21, 1968 an invading army led by the Soviet Union and including troops from Poland, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria marched into Czechoslovakia, elimination eliminating the few tentative stips toward freedom that had been taken by the Dubcek government.

Now, one year later, the Czech people have still not "adjusted" to the new, more tyrannical regime that has taken over. If anything, they are even more resentful and dissatisfied.

A young woman in Prague told a reporter: "It still hurts us all over even to think about everything that has happened. You should have seen how lively and optimistic we were before August," the month of the invasion.

Many Czechs have chosen to abandon their homeland rather than live under Soviet control, exercised through puppet Premier Gustav Husak. Approximately 50,000 Czechoslovaks have already left their homeland.

One of those who left, a 22-year-old automobile test driver settling in Austria, explained: "It could be decades before we get another chance at the freedoms we had last year."

These freedoms were lost because the Soviet Union cannot affort to allow the states it controls to gain independence of the Kremlin. Twice in less that 15 years, first in Hungary and then in Czechoslovakia, Soviet troops have brutally put down attemps to fight free of the Moscow stranglehold.

The Czechoslovaks still remember the progress toward liberty they had make before the invasion and hold fast to that memory in their hearts. In contrast to many persons in the free world, they are not likely to be fooled by any talk of Soviet "mellowing." HLH

Advice to Nixon:
Confidential Reports to Labor Chiefs Reveal Strategy For Driving GOP From New Power

By Victor Riesel

Atlantic City, N.J.: -- The amateur painter, labor leader George Meany, sent some professional political advice to the amateur pianist, Richard Nixon, the other day. The labor president opined he knew how the American President could rool up several million additional votes in the next election.

"We know the President's secret," Mr. Meany observed to Labor Secretary Shultz at dinner in Washington one recent night. "(Mr.) Nixon shoots 120 on the golf links. Now, why keep that score quiet? If the President made it public he'd get another two or three million to vote for him."

Four days later Mr. Nixon went out to the Eisehower putting green with some pros, and in public, missed a short putt by two feet. There may be no relationship. But it could be that President Nixon is taking no chances on the Republican Party losing the 1970 to 1972 election.

Neither is AFL-CIO President Geroge Meany, leader of the thousands of delegates to the Eighth Constitutional Convention which speaks for 13.6 million members. He'll give no advice to Mr. Nixon -- just warning.

Regardless of what's out front here, the big story is in the intense preparations for smashing the smooth Republican campaign machinery Mr. Nixon has welded. Mr. Meany says bluntly that "so far as labor is concerned the congressional election year of 1970 is when the chips are really down."

There will be no broadside clobbering of Mr. Nixon -- but he will be fought on all issues, all decisions which the AFL-CIO believes are not pro-labor.

This will be prelude to the final campaign to drive Mr. Nixon from the White House because his administration "is not oriented, or not sympathetic to labor needs."

Judging from reports -- some secret, some shyly public -- prepared for the delegates, the movement is prepared to spend millions checkmating President Nixon's personal effort to put Congress in Republican hands.

The reports, prepared by the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE), reveal its strength in documents stating that COPE registered four million new voters in 1968.

In the final weeks of the presidential campaign, COPE put 100,000 volunteers into its network of headquarters in a last minute push to re-elect Humbert Humphrey. Thus, with the Democratic Party splintered, snarling and gossamer in many states, Mr. Humphrey would have been America's first "labor president" had he defeated Richard Nixon.

Mr. Humphrey will acknowledge this during his visit here -- and he comes to this seaside traditional convention city with Minnesota's labor pledge to his '70 Senatorial campaign.

It will be a field day for "HHH." Mr. Nixon turned down the AFL-CIO Convention invitation. Secretary of State William Rogers agreed to come -- and then sent his regrets.

It may be just as well. Many of the delegates, especially in the building and construction trades union [illegible] the movement's establishment -- are bitter over the White House decision to cut back 75 per cent of federal construction. The construction industry is the land's biggest and federal, state, county and municipal building makes up a third of the $90 billion flow of money into the field.

Furthermore, though the rest of the nation has overlooked one of President Nixon's warnings on inflation, the building trades union chiefs and delegates have not. They know Mr. Nixon told governors, mayors and other governmental unit executives that "I strongly urge state and local government ot follow the example of the federal government by cutting back temporarily on their own construction plans. The degree and promptness with which they respond to this plea for partnership in action will be watched carefully.

"If the response proves insufficient, I shall need to restrict the commitments for construction that can be financed through federal grants."

This warning means that Mr. Nixon will cut back even more -- and thus hit at tight manpower markets -- and overtime. There are other differences with the administration. The opening of craft union memberships to tens of thousands of black workers on a "quote" or "goal" basis.

Thus there is convention table talk about "teaching the administration a The convention's political machine is oiled and in high gear. There is an 8-part, 40-page fantastically detailed confidential COPE report which leaves nothing, absolutely nothing, to the high command's imagination. It covers everything from local legislative races to future gubernatorial campaigns. Every state and every nook of each state is discussed.

The pages on New York State, for example, report that Ted Kennedy's brother- in- law Steve Smith still thinks seriously of running against Gov. Rockefeller. The California chapter tells labor's high command that the state's House Democratic leader Jesse Unruh is ahead of San Francisco's Mayor Alioto in the poll covering that '70 gubernatorial race. And that Gov. Reagan is thinking of running against Sen. George Murphy. And that California's traditionally unruly Democrats seem headed for another suicidal primary for both top offices..."

Like Mr. Nixon, this convention is lowering its voice. But make no mistake. It's like old times. Labor wants a friend in the White House, not a neutral-- to quote an old phrase of Arthur Goldberg.

Washington - Merry Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON --Only the most indiscreet racketeer would set up operations on the home grounds of the FBE, the Federal Narcotics Bureau and several stern congressional investigating subcommittees.

Yet a dapper, wavy-haired New York mobster, described in confidential government files as "A trusted member of the mafia inner circle," recently opened an expensive apartment in midtown Washington and paid a year's rent in advance.

This has led federal agents to wonder whether the mafia, which has stayed clear of Washington in times past, may now be moving into the nation's capital.

For not only has enrico "Harry" Tantillo, a notorious mafia figure, rented a Washington apartment, but other gangsters reportedly are offering mafia figure, rented a Washington apartment, but other gangsters reportedly are offering mafia money

For not only has enrico "Harry" Tantillo, a notorious mafia figure, rented a Washington apartment, but other gangsters reportedly are offering mafia money to Washington businessmen caught up in debts.

The cosa nostra has used the loan racket to take over legitimate businesses in Chicago, New York City, New Orleans and many other cities. But Washington, where businessmen are often only a walk away from the FBI office or Capitol Hill, had been thought free of mafia shylocks.

The 53-year-old Tantillo left his previous haunts in the bronx allegedly to oversee the dope trade in Washington. He is known to be associated with "Big John" Ormento and Innocenzio "John the Bug" Stopelli, two of the Nation's major heroin traffickers.

Tantillo was picked up along with more than 30 others in a district of Columbia drug sweep. Agnets were frankly startled to find such a big fish in their net. They claim to have found a half-kilogram of cocaine in his apartment, according to a bond-hearing statement of assistant U.S. Attorney Harold Sullivan. The cocaine is worth some $120,000 on the street.

The brazenness with which the mafia drug case developed, as recorded in filed affidavits, has shocked federal agents accustomed to a mafia-free capital city.

Tantillo selected an apartment, for instance, only a few blocks from the FBI,narcotics bureau, and metropolitan police headquarters. He also chose the fashionable hotel America for meetings with carmine "Chow Mein" paladino, now under indictment with him in a New Jersey federal narcotics case. All the while, the hotel happened to be housing narcotics bureau trainees from all over the U.S.

Note: The well-dressed Tantillo, who ran a pastry shop along with his narcotics business, is well known to law enforcement emn. His arrest records date back to 1935, including possession of a revolver, obstructing justice, influencing a witness and previous narcotics violations. Confidential government files also charge that he "supplies wholesale quantities of heroin" to underworld customers.

NASSER TO NIXON

Egypt's President Nasser sent a message last month to President Nixon asking what the United States would do for his country if Soviet influence should be reduced.

Apparently the suspicious Nasser had been listening to rumors that his long-truste Conrade, Aly Sabry, had been dealing behind his back with Moscow. Nassar might even have feared that Moscow was conspiring to install Sabry in his place.

Nixon's reply to Cairo didn't go much beyond warm words and general assurances. Therfore, Nasser let it be known that the U.S. reply was completely unacceptable.

ELEEMOSYNARY STORY

Under manager Ted Williams, the Washington Senators baseball team has just completed its first winning season in low these many years. Overlooked in all the happy, howling crowds at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium, however, were the wounded Vietnam veterans and other hospitalized soldiers who used to get free box seats for the games.

The new club managers handed out only general admission tickets to the patients at Washington's Walter Reed Army Hospital. Men in bandages and with crutches were obliged to hobble to the top of the great stadium to watch the games from the highest bleachers. Because the soldiers in wheelchairs couldn't make it, they were allowed to park their wheelchairs precariously on the ramps.

Explained Oscar Molomot, the promotion manager: "We are a business, not an eleemosynary institution. Seats are our stock in trade like coats on the rack in a clothing store.

Although he couldn't afford to let wounded veterans sit in the box seats, he offered this column free tickets for next season.

GROMYKO AND KISSINGER

After President Nixon's recent speech at the United Nations, White House Aide Henry Kissinger buttonholed Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and asked him what he thought of the speech.

Gromyko fended off the question, saying he didn't think of a speech as good or bad. Since he was preparing to deliver his own speech the following day, he promised that he would "try to be constructive tomorrow."

This was the reason,Kissinger replied, that the United States "tried to be constructive today."

Later Kissinger introduced Mrs. Shirley Temple Black, the former child movie star, to Gromyko. Although Mrs. Black has spoken against the United Nations in her California political campaigns, President Nixon has now appointed her to our un delegation. Gromyko, the diplomat, told her politely that the U.S. delegation would be "all the more powerful" because of her presence.

A Guy, Proud of Good Looks, Is Balding

Dear Ann Landers: The old cliche, "Everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it," is no longer true. A privileged segment of society, the scientists, ARE doing something about it and they should be sued for billions.

During the past 20 years the weather patterns of the earth have been drastically altered by excessive numbers of man-made disturbances such as rockets, missiles, bombs and other damned fool objects which have been let loose in space on a perpetual basis. Man's tinkering with the elements of nature have produced hurricanes, floods, tornadoes, blizzards and even earthquakes.

The lives and property of millions of innocent, defenseless people are being jeopardized by these idiots. Someone should call a halt to this dangerous program of weather corruption before civiliation is erased from the face of the earth. Please print this and wake up America! — Warren, Ohio

Dear Warren: Meteorological scientists tell us the amount of energy released in the atmosphere by man-made devices is infinitesimal compared to the energy produced by nature.

Historians have recorded violent weather — blizzards, tornadoes, earthquakes, floods and hurricanes ar far back as the first written word. Man suffered from destruction of the elements long before "the nutty scientists began to send damned fool things into space." What we can and SHOULD do somthing about is the idiots who are polluting the water and fouling the air. WAKE UP, AMERICA!!

Dear Ann Landers: This is my second marriage and I thank God every night for this wonderful man who rescued me from a living hell and made me whole again. Not only has Geroge been like an angel to me but he has been wonderful to my two small children.

Although I am in fairly good health I am haunted by the fear that if I should die, my first husband will take the children. He refuses to allow George to adopt them legally — not because he loves them, but because he wants to be obstreperous. He started to beat the children before they were old enough to walk. This was one of the principal reasons I divorced him.

Is there a way out that I do not see? Please help me. — Uptight

Dear Up: The lawyer who obtained your divorce is your best bet. See him at once. Perhaps he can give you the peace of mind you seek.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a male, 22, considered good looking and am well built. The problem: I'm beginning to lose my hair and I hate the thought of being bald.

I've tried everything form onion juice to sheep dung. Nothing helps. What do you know about hair transplants? Do they work? Does a fellow have to find his own donor or does the doctor do that? Please give me some information. I'm ashamed to talk to anybody. — Yul II

Dear Yul: Hair transplants have proven successful. A fellow does not have to find a donor, he's his OWN donor. The hair is transplanted from the back of his neck to the bald areas.

This procedure is not inexpensive and it is time consuming. But for those to whom hair is important, it can be a godsent.

How far should a teen-age couple go? Can necking be safe? When does it become too hot ot handle? Send for Ann Landers' boodlet, "Necking And Petting — What Are The Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

A Bit from Him, a Bit from Her, Combine for Best-for-Both Look

THESE BOOTS BORROW ... New "He & She" boots borrow from each other, but don't copy. The woman's boot is taller, and the man's boot has pull straps. Both Hush Puppies styles are in brushed pigskin and both have buckles and straps.

CHAIN ORNAMENTATION ... These companion styles feature chain ornamentation for both men and women. But the chain is proportioned specifically to complement the sex for which the shoe was designed.

LOOK-ALIKES ... This fall's "He & She" looks, look alike, but "He" is not "She." The shirts by Shim, the pants by Lynn Stuart for Mister Pants and the riding-type boots by Hush Puppies are all similar, but not identical. His pants are less flared than hers, have vertical pin stripes instead of horizontal ones like hers. Her riding boots have higher heels and a wider strap and buckle than his. The scarf she's wearing could easily become an ascot for him.

"Please don't call it Unisex," plead some of the designers of look-alike clothing for both sexes.

"He and She" tells better what it's all about the companion looks favored by 1969's young couples.

"Who says they want to look and dress exactly like each other?" asks Phoebe Hodges, fashion coordinator for Hush Puppies shoes. "They simply want to borrow ideas from each other, such as chains on shoes, buckles, scarves, pants silhouettes and shirt stripings which are equally applicable to dresses as well as the new vivid men's shirts."

For instance, she points out, he might wear a paisley scarf as an ascot. She might wear the same paisley scarf around her head, her waist or neck.

He might wear a bold buckle on his belt, and she might wear the same buckled belt or adapt the idea for her shoes.

He might select brushed (suede ) pigskin boots because of the soft look and easy care, and she might decide that brushed pigskin boots are just what she needs.

He might wear one of the newer bold shirts and she might then decide to buy one, too, or to adapt the fabric into a shirtwaist for herself.

Today's "He & She" looks range further and more imaginatively than some past wear-alike practices, such as when women bought pink shirts in men's departments in the early 1950s or, more recentiy, when men and women tucked coins in the bands of loafer shoes.

The new dimensions of today's "He & She" looks reflect new elements of today's life styles.

"Since men's clothes have recently become so much more exciting, it's inevitable that women now are borrowing more and more from men's wear," says Miss Hodges.

The way in which youths and young-marrieds spend time together also is a fashion factor, she points out.

"On Saturdays youths all over the country meet in shopping malls, instead of the corner drugstores of yesterday. Dating couples often shop together, each being exposed to what's available to both.

"And today's young marrieds shop together for almost everything food, furniture and fashions unlike their parents.

"In their fashion looks, today's youths don't want to obliterate the difference between sexes. They simply are reflecting the fact that they have a healthy respect for exchange of ideas between sexes, in and out of the classroom, in and out of the home," sums up Miss Hodges.

SCHELL CITY, Mo. (AP) - Missouri's archery deer season started at 5:30 a.m. Wednesday for a 92-day run but it was all over for Larry Southerland of Independence, Mo., in a little more than an hour.

He downed a four-point white-tail that dressed out to 150 pounds. He hunted on the Conservation Department's Schell-Osage Wildlife Area near Schell City.

The archery season ends Dec. 31.

Alcindor to Memphis

Atlanta and Lew Alcindor, er, the Milwaukee Bucks, meet in the preseason's final game in Memphis at the Mid-South Coliseum, October 11, and more than 12,000 fans will come out just to see if what they've heard about Lew Alcindor is true.

Buck' Coach Larry Costello says he's everything and more.

"He has great talent," Costello said recently after watching his rookie in a workout. "I was a bit worried about his stamina, but he's shown me that he can take it. We told the guys who were guarding him to work him over. They did and he took all they could dish out."

One of those who guarded him, Dick Cunningham said, "I noticed a great improvement in Alcindor from one workout to the next. He learned how to over power people. I thought he was a little weak at first, but he's more aggressive already."

Alcindor, too. thinks he can make the adjustment from college to the pro ranks.

"It will take me time, but I think I can make the transition. I know the schedule is longer and tougher, and the players are bigger and stronger, but I'm ready for the challenge. That's what makes life so interesting, the challenges," Alcindor said.

Tickets to the Lew Alcindor, er, Milwaukee Bucks- Atlanta Hawks Game went on sale Monday (September 29).

"We did not intend to put tickets on sale until the day of the game because of our season ticket drive. However, due to the tremendous demand for tickets to the Alcindor game, we changed our minds." Darrel May, Director of Basketball for mid- South Sports Action, Inc., mused.

Tickets are available at the Mid- South Coliseum and at Goldsmith's Central Ticket Office.

Unbeaten Indians At Evansville Saturday

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Southeast Missouri State College takes to the road Saturday for an 8 p.m. game in the Reitz Bowl at the University of Evansville, Ind.

Evansville, coached by James Byers, will be out to get back on the right track after a 14-8 loss last weekend to Indiana State University. The Purple Aces opened their season with a comfortable victory over Bradley University.

Southeast Missouri will be going after win number three. The Indians squeaked by Delta State College 7-6 in their opener, then dumped Jacksonville State University 19-13 Saturday.

The win over Jacksonville was a costly one, however, as it resulted in injuries to junior running back Al Holmes of St. Louis and freshman defensive back Jim Powell of Webster Groves.

Powell is lost for the season, while Holmes is out for a couple of weeks at the least.

Indian Head Coach Tom Thrower will most likely stat Claence Finley, a 182- pound junior from St. Louis, in place of Holmes. Getting the nod for Powell will probably be Herman Williams, a 175-pound sophomore from Petersburg, Va.

Evansville and Southeast Missouri have met eight times previously with he Indians winning six, including the contest last year when the margin was 22-8.

Despite this longterm success and despite his team's unbelmished record so far this fall, Thrower views Saturday night's opponent with a great deal of respect.

"They've got the best team they've had in four years," he declared, "and they have an especially good passing attack. We expect them to throw the ball a lot."

Evansville's passing attack is run by junior quarterback Craig Blackford of Tell City, Ind., who last week completed 19 of 38 for 211 yards. Five of the tosses were caught by junio speedster Doug Atherton of Evansville, who is also the Purple Aces' top rusher.

He gained 92 of the 95 yards which Evansville had on the ground against Indiana State. A touchdown dash accounted for 50 of them.

Defeinsively the Purple Aces are led by Gerald Seib, a 215- pound linebacker from Evansville, and they have experience at every position except safety and left end.

For their prt, tne Indians have a pretty good passing attack also, led by senior Greg Schroeder of St. Louis, who this year has completed 27 of 50 attempts for 336 yards and one touchdown. Their top rusher to this point has been Holmes, who has averaged 5.7 yards per carry.

Tuesday also concluded the Ringer Tournament which has been in progress for the last month. Composite scores showed the winners to be: Mary Bain won the championship flight with a score of 71; Betty Dawson with a 76 was second and June Watson third with 77.

In flight one the winner was Doris Stepp 78; Tatty Tope second with 82 and Evelyn Warf 82.

Flight two was won by Henrietta Ferrell 85, followed by Doris Wyle 93 and Thelma Bush 93.

Jeanette Lathom and Mary Kellett were winners in flight three.

Margaret Baber was guest winner.

For the past year the rules and regulation for the club - have been in the process of being revised. On Tuesday. the club voted to accept the revision.

Mary Kellett gave the year's report of the finance department.

The secretary gave some of the year's highlights. Included were some "spoofs" and some notes and scores from minutes of the club in 1955- 1957 and 1960.

Pictures of the winners of 1960 were on exhibit.

Eight members of the current club have been members since 1955 or longer.

Betty Mitchell was chairman of the nominating committee. Officers for next year are Martha Graff president; Henrietta Ferrell vice president; Jean Lee, secretary; June Watson treasurer; Evelyn Warf tournament chairman; and Mary Bain, handicap chairman.

Betty Mitchell and Doris Stepp are the prize committee and Lucille Miller is hostess chairman.

The main event of the day was the awarding of the two coveted prizes that are the goals of the golfers for the year.

The Regina Myer trophy, donated by Mrs. Meyer for some years, is awarded to the golfer with the lowest 15 scores for the year. This year's chairman, Betty Dawson, was the winner of the beautiful silver tray.

The Buckner Ragsdale trophy donated by Mrs. Lough, is awarded to the golfer showing the greatest improvement. The winner this year, recipient of a silver ice bucket is Mary Bain. Mary has had a spectacular year of golf and richly deserves the award.

A golf jacket was presented to the retiring president, Mrs. Dawson, as a thank you for doing such a fine job as leader of the club.

Organized golf is over but the beauty of autumn is just beginning and the new part of the golf course bordering the city park is a spot of beauty.

This is a splendid time to try some of your unused clubs and shots that need practice. Then when the sunshine of next April comes you will be ready to go out in search of pars, birdies and even an eagle now and then.

Mizzou...Inviting Target

COLUMBIA — Mizzou and Michigan -- two look-alike football teams in offensive exeuction -- slug it out in an intersectional brawl at Ann Arbor Saturday afternoon.

It's the first meeting between the two clubs since 1959-- when Dan Devine's second Tiger squad escaped fm Michigan Stadium with a 20-15 win on Bob Haas' one- yard quarterback sneak with just two seconds left on the clock.

There was 2:48 to go when the Bengals took the kickoff and swirled 78 yards behind Haas, a reserve quarterback drafted from he defensive unit. The dramatic win spoiled "Bump" Elliot's coaching debut.

Now Elliott's successor, Bo Schmebechler, is in his first year as Wolverine boss -- and Mizzou's mission looks just as perilous this time around.

Michigan, you see, has bull- whipped two opponents, Vanderbilt and Washington, for 87 total points, and quite apparent is Schembechler's handiwork. The former Miami of Ohio coach switched split end Glenn Doughty to tailback last spring -- and all of a sudden, quarterback Don Moorhead -- a 1968 reserve -- is a wondrous run- and - pass leader.

Bo wasn't exactly starting from scratch either, despite the loss of all- America tailback Ron Johnson and quarterback Dennis Brown, an all- Big Ten choice. He has 33 lettermen back this year off that 8-2 squad that lost its first (California) and last games (Ohio State).

Doughty, a 195- pound breakaway artist, has stepped off 329 yards in two outings. Moorhead at 193 pounds has 231 rushing yards-- with a pair of 100- plus performances -- and his passing threat is just as ominous.

Capt. Jim Mandich, a 6-ft. a 6- ft. 3 and 217-pound broth of an end, is a superior receier -- currently ranking No. 2 on the all-time Wolverine yardage tables.

So Michigan has the talent, all- right, and the inclination to strike a low for Big Ten prestige. Mizzou's bowl win over Alabama, and early- season triumphs over Air Force and Illinois, make the Big Eight invaders an inviting target.

Devine's Tigers can counter with a slashing tailback-- Joe Moore-- whose 185 yards in slightly less than three- quarters of the Illinois game earned the 198- poun junior Back-of - the Week honors in the midlands. Moore has a two-game haul of 315 yards.

Terry McMillan, senior Mizzou quarterback, runs the option best, too, but the Bengal triggerman is far below Moorhead's product Curtis of Michigan is not often fooled.

Last year Curtis intercepted 10 stray passes --nine in league games for a Big Ten record. He was a second team all- America selection.

Missouri won't have Rocky Wallace, all-conference tackle, for the third straight wee -- but fullback Jim Harrison mighmake the travel roster to Ann Arbor. Both have been out with pulled hamstring muscles. Pete Buha, sophomore defensive back is disabled for at least two weeks with a foot sprain.

McMillan, who sprained a toe against the Illini, missed two practices this week- but was due to start Saturday, backed up by sophomores Chuck Roper and Mike Farmer.

The teams have met just twice pevioulsy, Michigan winning a 1955 match handily, 42-7, on end Ron Kramer's spectacular pass- catching. Devine's record against Big Ten foes is 8-1-1.

Cards Still Battling

The war has been lost but the battle goes on for St. Louis' stubborn Cardinals.

The deposed 1968 National League champions kept alive their hopes for a share of third place in the East Division Wednesday night by nipping Philadelphia 6-5 on rookie Ted Simmons' run - scoring triple in the ninth inning.

St. Louis, an early casualty in the division title race following two consecutive peannants, trails the third place Pittsburgh Pirates by one game in the league's last undecided contest going into tonight's season finale against the Phillies.

The Pirates stayed in front with a 5-4 nod over Montreal, rookie Al Oliver delivering the winning run with a ninth inning single. They take on the expansion Expos tonight in their season windup.

Elsewhere, left-hander Claude Osteen posted his 20th victory as Los Angeles topped Houston 5-2 under the lights after New York's East Division kings shaded the Chicago Cubs 6-5 in 12 innings and San Diego rocked San Francisco 9-4 in day games. Atlanta, the West Division champion, was idle.

In the American League, Baltimore took Detroit 2-1 in 10 innings; Minnesota bowed to the Chicago White sox 4-3; Washington edged Boston 3-2; the New York Yankees slipped past Cleveland 4-3; Seattle nudged Oakland 4-3 and Kansas City blanked California 6-0 in a rain-abbreviated five-inning contest.

Rookie catcher Ted Simmons turned in an eleventh-hour, game-winning performance for the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night. His two-out triple in the ninth inning gave the Cardinals a 6-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Once again Joe Torre at first base was the only veteran in the lineup, seeking his 100th rbi of the season.

The Cardinals close their season against Philadelphia tonight.

Simmons, a switch hitter just turned 20, was rookie of the year this season for the Cardinals Tulsa, Okla., farm club of the American Association.

The Cardinals got their other runs in the second inning, two on Joe Hague's second home run of the year. Rookie shortstop Jerry Devanon accounted for two runs in that inning with a single.

Rookie starters Reggie Cleveland of St. Louis and Jeff James of Philadelphia were driven off the mound. Joe Hoerner, 2-3, was the winner in relief and Lowell Palmer, 2-8, was the loser.

Rickie Allen was the big Philadelphia gun, with a run - scoring double in the first inning and a fifth-inning single that scored two of the three runs tallied in the inning.

The Cardinals start Bob Gibson in tonight's season windup. Gibson is 19-13.

BOUGHT HOLE

LEICESTER, England (AP) — The city of Leicester has bought a hole in the ground and now is wondering what to do with it.

British Railways, government-owned, looked around its cupboard and found a 1,796-yard-long tunnel from Leicester to Glenfield, unused. The rail line through it has been abandoned for years.

So BR put it up for sale for five pounds (12 dollars).

City council snapped it up.

Now they don't know what to do with it. One taxpayer wrote in: "Fill it up and forget about it."

Groucho 74 and Still Leering At the Ladies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Happy birthday to Groucho Marx, 74 today and still leering at the ladies.

"Would you pull your skirt down?" he asked a coed as he addressed a collegiate audience this week. "It's very distracting —even at my age."

To another student cutie: "That's a complex question I can't answer here. But if you want to meet me afterward ..."

Groucho was doing insult jokes when Don Rickles was in knee pants and the tongue's still scalpel sharp.

To a fumbling theater man trying to raise Groucho's microphone he complained: "This is really the age of mediocrity. Is this your regular job?"

The students had just witnessed the Marx Brothers' 1935 MGM vehicle "A Night at the Opera." It was the first of 10 screenings of old pictures being presented by the Movie Academy, with a star answering questions after each showing.

The cinema students really dug the old, small-screen riot, applauding Groucho's antics as Otis B. Driftwood, fast-talking king promoter in crouching pursuit of a wealthy dowager.

There were shrieks and applause, too, for his late brothers: wild-wigged, nonspeaking Harpo, the self-taught harpist, and brash Chico, playing a piano with an eloquent forefinger.

Afterward Groucho perched down front on a high stool and answered questions.

He's balding now and almost gaunt.

"I'm a little hard of hearing," he said, asking that a question be repeated.

Was Harpo always silent? "Not when we split the money."

Did the brothers "actually follow scripts?"

"Hardly ... Women didn't understand us very well. We were more for a male audience, at least in the theater ... We discovered early that the best writers were the audience. If they laughed at something, we left it in."

Your Dog Ought To Be In Pictures

"You ought to see my dachshunds, you will probably need a close- up lens to get you in close enough to take a really telling picture. Even very simple, instant - loading cameras, such as the Kodak Instamatic 134, can be easily and inexpensively adapted to take a close-up shot. Ask your local photo dealer for information on attachments and techniques.

While lining up your pre-planned shots, take a hard look at what your background will be. In a good location that offers a neat, appealing background, lower your camera to the same level as the dog and aim directly at him. If the background seems cluttered and distracting, shift your camera to a higher angle to put a plain grass or carpet background behind your dog. Or hold the camera low and shoot up at the dog. Used outdoors, this low angle will provide a clear blue sky backdrop and will also make your dog look very impressive.

Lighting will determine exactly how alive and three dimensional your dog will appear in his pictures. Backlighting from the sun, for instance, can create an especially flattering, almost halo effect on long- haired dogs. If your dog likes to lie in the sun by a window, grab the opportunity to take a good indoor shot with the available light coming through the glass. When there is not enough natural light, the light from a flashcube can be adapted, too, with layers of handkerchief to subdue the light sufficiently for close- up work.

For a formal, or portrait, type picture set up a shot indoors in the basement or garage. A large roll of colored paper, in a color that contrasts nicely with the puppy's coat, can provide a bright background if suspended from a pipe or a wall so that it runs down and forward under the dog. Laundry baskets, boxes, drawers or even a big handbag are props that can help you keep your puppy in the picture - taking area. For an especially lively pup, find an assistant who is familiar with the animal and can keep him interested in a toy, some food or just some idle chatter while you take the pictures.

Young or old, your dog will look his best if you groom him before you start that shutter clicking. Be sure to brush his coat well and wipe his eyes. A touch of color can be added with a special color or fresh bow.

Whether it is a smile, an attitude or another hole in the ground, something sets your dog apart from all the rest. National Dog Week is a good time to record that endearing difference in pictures.

AFL-CIO Kicks off Convention

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) The AFL-CIO opened its convention today with plans to kick out one union and to raise dues by $4.6 million a year for some 13 million members of the labor federation's remaining 121 unions.

Both actions were linked, at least in part, with Walter Reuther's withdrawal of his United Auto Workers from the federation last year after a bitter leadership quarrel with AFL-CIO President George Meany.

The loss of Reuther's 1.6 million auto workers left a financial hole of about $1 million a year in the federation's income.

The AFL-CIO's 29-man executive council, headed by Meany, voted Wednesday to ask the 1,000 convention delegates to expel the International Chemical Workers Union for joining Reuther's Alliance for Labor Action.

Reuther formed the alliance early this year with acting President Frank Fitzsimmons of the 1.9-million-member Teamsters Union, which was expelled from the AFL-CIO in 1957 on corruption charges.

Ironically, Reuther was a major leader in the fight to oust the teamsters from the federation.

The 110,000-member chemical workers joined the alliance despite Meany's warning that any AFL-CIO union that did so would face expulsion.

The 75-year-old Meany branded the auto workers-teamsters alliance a "hostile" labor organization set up to raid and otherwise compete with AFL-CIO unions.

The proposed dues increase from 7 cents per member per month to 10 cents will add $4.6 million to AFL-CIO income.

The money is used for the federation's programs to organize new workers, lobby in Congress and conduct other business of the nation's labor movement.

In addition to offsetting the loss of auto worker dues, the AFL-CIO needs more money to operate its recently created labor studies center in Washington to train union officials in modern problems facing the labor movement.

In other action, the AFL-CIO executive council urged President Nixon to work to wipe out racial discrimination and segregation in the nation.

"There should be no retreat or compromise," said the council of the labor federation, some of whose unions have themselves been accused of discrimination against Negroes and other minorities.

ONCE AGAIN BASIC TRAINING — Sp5 Rawdon L. Vonfeldt discusses his future with California highway patrolman Cliff Singer. Specialist Vonfeldt, a chaplain's assistant in the office of the Sixth Army chaplain, Presidio of San Francisco, will complete his service this summer and start basic training at the Sacramento Highway Patrol Academy. The young soldier became interested in law enforcement through "Project Transition." A Department of Defense program, Project Transition offers in-service academic and on-the-job training in civilian skills for servicemen about to leave the Army.

"God, Have You Gone Your Limit In Love?"

J. Lester McGee, D.D.
Centenary United Methodist Church
Saint Louis, Missouri

I have felt a strong impulse, born of the Holy Spirit I believe, on these December Advent Sundays to go back and lift up some of the much neglected basics in religion. I think there is no better place to begin biblically than with that one verse we all learned first and have never forgotten - John 3:16. And I will use the King James Version, for that is the one we learned. I should like for all of you to say it with me, aloud: "GOD SO LOVED THE WORD THAT HE GAVE HIS ONLY BEGOTTEN SON THAT WHOSEVER BELIEVETH IN HIM SHOULD NOT PERISH BUT HAVE EVERLASTING LIFE." I hope these words have not grown slick with the years, rolling off the mind without jabbing the conscience or stinging the emotions.

And, coupled with that familiar verse, another fine statement of the Apostle Paul: "We are able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth and height and to know the love of Christ which passes knowledge."

I think the Apostle Paul must have read and been familiar with one of my favorite passages of Scripture found in the Old Testament Book of Job. "Can you find out the deep things of God? Can you find out the limits of the Almighty? It is higher than Heaven ... deeper than Sheol... Its measure is longer than the earth and broader than the sea." Someone has well said, "The love of God has a height without a top, a depth without a bottom, a length without an end, and a breadth without a limit."

Paul was continually using odd languages in his treatment of the Gospel of Christ. He borrowed the phraseology of the racetrack, the terminology of the prize - fight, the vocabulary of the army officer. But in attempting to describe the love of God, he remembered his old classroom language and defined the love of God in mathematical terms.

We know that we usually find an unknown quantity by taking the known quantities and a prescribed formula and performing an arithmetical operation. Paul gave us the formula: "The love of God equals the breadth plus the length plus the depth, plus the height," the four dimensions. John gave us all the quantities: "God so loved the world," that's the breadth, "that he gave his only begotten Son," that's the length," that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish," that's the depth; "but have everlasting life," that's the height.

Let's take this formula and these quantities and see what our new math does with it.

"For God so loved the world." No wonder the poet has said that the love of God is broader than the measure of man's mind. But that word "world" is used in four different ways in sacred Scripture. The first way in which it is used is in reference to the material world- the earth, the terrafirma, the rivers and lands and mountains and valleys, the forests and plains. Its more usual meaning, as it was found so frequently on the lips of our Lord and in the Epistles of Paul, was with reference to the forces of evil in the world opposed to God and goodness. The world within a world, the spirit of evil in the world, that which Wordsworth had in mind when he wrote, "The world is too much with us." That which Paul meant when he said, "Be not conformed to this world... Pure religion and undefiled is that a man keep himself unspotted from the world." The third way in which it is used is with regard to the intellectual world, the worldly - wisedness of men in the world.

The fourth way is that employed in John 3:16, the Latin homo, human; the Latin populous, people. This world of sinning, suffering, sorrowing, rejoicing, loving, aspiring men and women, that's the world that God loved. "For God so loved the world," - the populous. Herein is the mystery. This sinning, rejecting, rebelling world as we know it does not seem to be a fit object of His love, yet He loves it. As a child I used to sing that Jesus loves all the children of the world - red and yellow, black and white, they are precious in His sight. God loves the people of the world.

Our world is an ungrateful world. It is a hostile world. It is a sinful world. It is a dead world. Martin Luther once cried in his vivid way, "If I were as Lord God and these vile people were as disobedient as they now be, I would knock the world in pieces." And a poet has said, "If I were God and man had made a mire of things- war, hatred, murder, lust, cobwebs of infamy, intangling the heart and soul, I would sweep him to one side and start anew, I think I would. If I did this would I be God?" And the resounding answer of John 3:15 is you would not be God. This verse affirms the fact that God looked at all the sorry scheme of things and loved it every bit. This foolish, blundering, wayward world is the object of His unending love, for here is a love that is never provincial, exclusive or limited. God loves us not because we are a lovable object but because He is a loving Subject. His love leaps over every barrier to embrace men of every color, nationality and background. National boundaries, color lines, racial prejudices, social distinctions, economic levels and class differences are not recognized in His kingdom. This is one of the amazing basic facts of the Scripture which we often lose sight of - GOD LOVES THE WORLD! And as we remember, Edwin Markham put it this way: "He drew a circle that left me out; a heretic, rebel, a thing to flout; but love nd I had the wit to win, we drew a circle that took him in." "FOR GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD." Where can you find breadth like that?

"THAT HE GAVE HIS ONLY BEGOTTEN SON." That's the length. The test of love accurately and permanently is the length to which it will go. We are living in a day in which people do not accept things as a matter of course. They want proof. They want evidence. They say, "If God loves us as much as you say he does; if God loves the world, let Him prove it." And it would be so easy for God to offer what some men would call proof of His love.

Some people would have Him write His love in the heavens indelibly among the stars as white as the pillow of cloud by day and as radiant as the pillow of fire by night. Others would have Him create a new world with fresh opportunities for all men. Still others would have him alter the external conditions of the universe and make life a primrose path of ease for idle feet. God could do all this and still not prove His love because this would cost Him nothing, it would require no effort.

One of the most amazing passages of Scripture to me, well, it's really several parts of the first chapter of the Book of Genesis, the story of Creation. One time I summed up enough courage to try to preach on it, and I failed so miserably. I just couldn't grasp it.

If you will read the first chapter, the story of Creation, you will discover that seven or eight verses begin with these words, "AND GOD SAID," starting with "God said, 'Let there be light," and go on down seven or eight times, "And God said," And God said," "And God said," And everyone of these verses closes with the same words - "AND IT WAS SO." His word is immutable, it is irrevocable. When He says something THAT'S THE WAY IT IS. He would have only to say it. He would have only to lift His finger and ghettos would disappear and poverty would be eradicated, storms and earthquakes would be no more. He would have only to say it. But that isn't the way He created this world and in doing all these things that men would call proof of His love would not be proof, because it wouldn't cost Him anything.

You want to know how much God loves the world and how much God loves you? Then come and stand at the foot of the Cross and look up into the face of a bleeding, dying Savior. God dressed Himself in crimson garments and came down to court the love of men. God would rather die than renounce His love for all men. Don't ask me why He chose that method - I don't know, except that it cost Him something to prove His love. It cost Him His life. It cost Him suffering on the Cross. That's the length of God's love."

"THAT WHOSOEVER BELIEVETH IN HIM SHOULD NOT PERISH." The depth of the love of God is set forth first in the purpose of the Incarnation, in the infinite descent from the presence of God where he was enshrined in glory and majesty, to the depth of shame and desolation and anguish of the Cross. He was truly the joy of heaven to earth come down. He made that descent voluntarily. He made that descent ignominiously. He stopped in gracious condescension until He joined common cause with Man in his deepest dilemma. Don't ask me why God used that Method. All I know is that He has astounded the scholars of all ages by using that method. HE CAME DOWN! HE DESCENDED TO THE LOWEST DEPTHS! The man who uffers physically, the person who is in mental anguish can reach over and touch One who is beside him, for He descended to the lowest depths of mental and emotional anguish. One of the writers, trying to describe his anguish of spirit in the garden, said, "He sweat drops of blood." In this day when we are talking a great deal about poverty and declaring war on poverty, I say our only mistake is in not remembering that there is One who went to an even lower depth of poverty, and if He can be taken into the ghettos, if He can be shared with the poor and destitute, there might be a little more help and encouragement, for He descended to the depths of poverty.

Paul said, "Though He was rich, yet for your sake He became poor that you through his poverty mighty be made rich." You know the old saying, Jesus was so poor he had to borrow a manager from the beast of the field in which to be born. He was so poor every sermon he preached was from a borrowed pulpit, the hillside, a boat, or the lakeshore. He was so poor when he made his triumphet entry into Jerusalem he rode on a borrowed beast. He ate his last meal with his disciples in a barrowed room and when he was crucified they had to bury him in a borrowed grave. He said, The foxes have their holes and the birds have their nests," and the poor have their ghettos, "bt the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head." He also said, "He has anointed me to preach good news to the poor."

And the depth of the love of God is set forth in that this descent was not made exclusively for the flower of humanity, the rare and the lovely creature, but for the one that had gone the deepest in sin, the farthest away from God, the lost, the least, he last - "come let us reason together. Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow." "God commended his love toward us in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us."

When I was in Sikeston a man came to see me. This man was the reprobate of all reprobates so far as my experience has been. Here was a wretched derelict of a wasted life. He came into my study slobbering and crying and pouring out a sordid story. I had heard lots of stories but this one unrew me into a momentary trauma. I was sitting there stunned as he poured it out, and, finally, reaching over and grasping the edge of my desk, sensing something of my remoteness from the sordid world in which he had lived, his trembling chin glistening with perspiration, he said, "Preacher, you not listening. You don't understand what I'm talking bout. Preacher, I've been in hell." And I did get hold of myself in time to say, "Well, I admit I have not had any personal experience with this wretched kind of life. However, I do know someone who went to hell to bring you back." And then I was able to lead a startled man to Calvary, that place where men made a hell.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

About a month ago, the Board of Education reduced the school tax rate from $4.42, the rate which was earlier approved by voters of this district, to $4.19. This reduction was made as a result of increases in valuation of taxable property in the county in accordance with instructions from the State Tax Commission.

The tax rate in this school district is above that of some of our neighboring school districts, it is lower than some others. The reason that our tax rate must be set at the present figure is because our valuations per child is very low. The taxable valuation back of each child of this district is about $4,800. There are some school districts in the state that have valuations up to $42 thousand dollars per child. Most of our neighboring school districts have higher evaluations per child than we do. Likely one reason for this is that our district is comparatively small, it doesn't contain much farm land and consequently, the population, centered largely in Sikeston, Miner and Morehouse, is high in relation to taxable property.

Many school districts with considerably higher evaluations per child than we have also vote considerably higher rates. For example, rates in he following school districts are: Carutherswille, $4.87; De Soto, $4.70; Eureka, $4.50; Excelsor Springs, $4.30; Ferguson, $5.17; Festus, $5.65; Fulton, $4.25; Grandview, $5.61; Hazlewood, $5.22; Independence, $4.45; Kinloch, $4.97; Kirkwood, $4.99; Lees Summit, $4.80. Mexice, $4.23; Normandy, $5.19; Pattonville, $4.43; Poplar Bluff, $4.40; Raytown, $5.75; Riverview Gardens, $4.46; Rolla, $4.20; St. Charles, $4.99; University City, $5.42; Webster Groves, $5.20 and Wellsville, $5.47.

Of course, some districts voted lesser tax rates but they can do so because either they do not maintain an educational program of the same quality or more likely their taxable evaluations back of each child are larger than are ours. In some cases, very much so.

It is not the function of the Board of Education to keep the tax rate down, but rather to provide an educational program of the scope and quality that can be reasonably maintained within the financial resources of the school district. We would also remind patrons that the local tax rate can only be established through the approval of the voters. It is not set by the Board of Education. It is recommended by them at the lowest figure which will support the educational program.

When the tax rate is approved, it then becomes the responsibility of the Board, delegated by them to the administrators and faculty, to operate the most effective educational program possible with the funds which are available.

There is very considerable pressure by certain radical student groups and even some politicians, to discontinue the ROTC program (Reserve Officers Training Corps) in our colleges and universities. We think it would be wise for these people to consider the alternatives to ROTC. We have three service schools: the Navy, Army and Air Force Academies. Last year their combined graduating class of ensigns and second lieutenants numbered only slightly over 2,000. As long as our commitments in the world are about as they are now, and there is little chance that they will change appreciably, our services require an input of at least ten times as many new officers as the academies graduate. There is no more expensive education than that of the service academies. ROTC graduates, on the other hand, cost the taxpayer comparatively little. If ROTC were to be abolished, it would be necessary to set up ten or more professional academies or to enlarge the present ones to that capacity. From a cost standpoint alone, this doesn't seem to be very sound economics.

Cost, however, is not the most important consideration. Professional armies, made up only of career individuals, have a tendency to become isolated from the purposes of the civilian population and government. Through history, dictatorships have always been supported by professional or volunteer armies. Almost all of the "coups" or take overs of government are done by professional military organizations. Witness Greece, the emerging African nations and Central and South American dictatorial governments.

Draftees and ROTC graduates generally represent the civilian viewpoint and purposes. They are generally serving for limited periods only. They are at least a semi- part of the civilian philosophy. Their concern is almost always to win, as quickly and effectively as possible, whatever war or conflict they are engaged in and to get back to their civilian activities. Most thoughtful students of government, concerned with a democratic system, believe that the maintenance of ROTC and the drafting of civilians to represent that viewpoint in the armed forces is essential to the preservation of democracy.

Undoubtly, our present draft system is a monstrosity. It is as unfair as it can be. It should, be modified to at least be fair in that every eligible individual has exactly the same chance of being called to duty regardless of economic status, race, etc. as do any of his counterparts. But, the continuation of the draft system, unpopular though it is, would seem in the long run, to be best for the perpetuation of our present system of government.

The Area Vocational School, which our Board of Education maintains for our own students and those of neighboring communities, provides about 70 units of subject matter in a wide variety of trade- technical subjects. A high school student can equip himself, or herself, with the knowledge and skill which will, in most cases, secure immediate employment upon graduation or even better, provide a sound foundation for advanced training in a vocation after high school graduation. The Area Vocational School provides the opportunity for this advanced training with a 13th or 14th year program in trade-technical education. About 70 students are enrolled in the post high school two -year course now. Enrollment is expected to grow as students, both here and in neighboring communities, learn more about this fine opportunity

Although about 136 students from neighboring schools are enrolled in the high school level area vocational school courses, our facilities would accommodate many more. Boards of education in neighboring school districts can send their students, who are interested in vocational training, to the Area School at comparatively small cost to their district. It would be almost economically impossible for many school districts in this area to provide the breadth of program that is offered at the Area School. We find that about 56% of our students are interested in some phase of vocational education, in fact about that percentage are enrolled. We suspect that the same would be true of most Southeast Missouri high schools but the lack of participation by some schools who could give their students this opportunity, indicates that full advantage is not yet being taken of the program offered here.

The school was established to provide vocational education for, not only our school, but the neighboring area. The school gets some federal funds to finance the program only because it is opened to all students. Consequently, we invite and urge that our neighboring boards of education avail themselves of this opportunity and thus to provide their students with the chance to become trained for some vocation, which should be one of the prime goals of education.

We invite boards of education and administrators from neighboring schools to participate as fully as they can in this cooperative program. Those wishing further information may contact Jim Cornett, Director of the Area School, or Roger Sherman, Principal of the Senior High School, for further information. Either, or both, will be glad to meet with interested groups or individuals to explain the wealth of vocational education opportunities available to all students who wish to enroll.

---

We have all heard the expression "old dogs can't learn new tricks." This certainly doesn't apply to people as we find that all ages are able to acquire additional knowledge or to learn new skills. To prove this, over 400 adults are now enrolled in one or more of the wide variety of classes in the after or evening school program operated by our Board of Education.

---

We think that high schools have too long been influenced by colleges and universities. By that, we mean that a great deal of our educational offerings, the program in general, is dictated by college entrance requirements. In doing this, we often forget that we should be in a much better position to decide what high school students should learn than are the colleges. If we would do a better job of making the curriculum fit the needs of students, the colleges would eventually redesign their entrance requirements to what we teach their prospective students. What else could they do, as they have got to get their students from the high schools.

Several months later a nicely dressed man walked into my student and with a smile grasped my hand, saying: "Do you remember me?" I said, "Well, yor face is familiar, but you will have to tell me." He said, "You remember the man who walked in here one day and told you he had been in hell and you told him somebody had gone to hell to bring him back?" He decalred, "I'm that man!" I said, "Well, you don't look as if you have been in hell lately." He said, "Oh, no, I've been in heaven." His life was now redemmed and cleaned up.

When old Bishop Booth died his nurse said to a friend, "I know where the Bishop is tonight. His soul has gone to hell." The startled friend stood speechless until the nurse explained, "That's the only place he could be happy. There are so many people there. There is so much work to be done there. I know the Bishop must have gone to hell."

Christ was like that. In our old Creed we used to say it, the Presbyterians still say it that way: "He descended into hell," meaning He sought out hell in His hunger for sinful men. He could not stay away from Jerusalem and the Cross.

My friends, this is the paradox of the Gospel, that men who run the farthest from God may actually run into the arms of God. That men who finally hit rock bottom may discover it to be the "rock of ages." That men who crucify the Son of God afresh in the insanity of their sin may yet hear Him say at their own Calvary, "Father, forgive them."

Old Dr. Fosdick used to tell the story of a man who dreamed he fell into a deep pit out of which he could not climb. He called for help and a priest of Confucius passed by and heard his calls, learned over and the man begged: "Please, sir, help me out." The priest of Confucius reprimanded him for falling into the pit. "Sir, when you get out, you be careful, watch your step, lest you fall into another pit." He passed on. The man called again and this time a Priest of Buddha another pit." He passed on. The man called again and this time a Priest of Buddha came by and heard his calls and leaned over and said to him, "If you can climb up so I can reach you with my hand, I'll pull you out." The man could not climb. The priest of Buddha passed by. Then he called again. This time Jesus of Nazareth came by and immediately lowered himself into the pit, put his arms around him and lifted him out. That's why we sing, "From sinking sand, He lifted me; With tender hands, He lifted me; From shades of night, to plains of light, Oh, praise His name, He lifted me."

"For God so loved the world," - that's the breadth; "That He gave His only begotten Son," that's the length; "That whosoever believeth in Him should not perish," that's the depth; "But have everlasting life," that's the height."

God's high and holy purpose is that those who love Him may eventually have eternal life; well, yes, eventually, but not only eventually may now have eternal life. I wonder if we have not rung the changes upon the "everlastingness" of life too much. It is everlasting, make no mistake about that. It is no less that, but it is vastly more than that. This has something to do with more than mere dimensional prolongation of living or existence. Other dimensions are involved which make for solidity and cubical content. The test of living, my friends, is not its duration, its endlessness, its quanitty, though it is all that - rather its quality, the kind of lifyit promises and demonstrates. This is the height of thylove of God, that his man who had been in hell could now live as if to believe he was in heaven.

I remember a story, I don't recall where I read it or what I read it from. It is a simple story, but it did make an impression on me. During the early days of America's life when so many people were coming to these shores, this new country, a young man lived with his widowed mother in one of the European countries and he, too, wanted to come to America. Finally, his aged mother said, "You can go if you will send for me and let me come to that new country and live out my last days." HE made that promise and came to America and settled in one of the Eastern seaboard colonies and began to make his way. He met a young lady who with her parents had come from another part of the world. They fell in love and were going to be married. He had told her of his promise to his mother and asked her if she would write his mother and invite her, because now she might hesitate to come into the home of a perfect stranger. The girl sat down to write the mother and as she wrote she said something like this, "Dear Mother, I want you to know that I love you very much. You may wonder why I can love you never having met you. I love you for many reasons but most of all I love you because you did not keep your son at home."

Now, my friends, we can philosophize all we please. We can go to school and learn all about technology and science. We can become masterful philosophers. We can achieve success in life and become experts and proficient in our various fields, but we must never get away from this simple, basic fact of life which underlies all the success which is ours, without which we could not have this opportunity to achieve so much and become so proficient in our fields of endeavor, the simple fact that we ought to love God because He did not keep His Son at home.

"Lord Jesus, I love thee, I know thou art mine;
For thee all the follies of sin I resign;
My gracious Redeemer, My Savior art thou;
If ever I loved thee, Lord Jesus, 'tis now."

Agnew to Speak At GOP Dinner

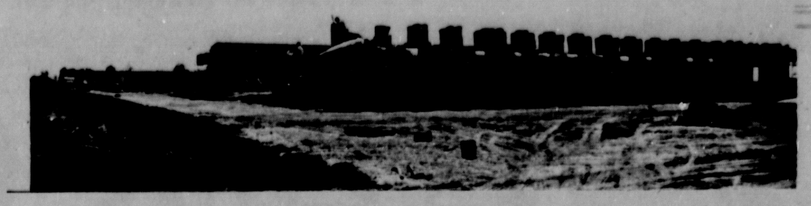
ST. LOUIS (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew will highlight the last of three Republican fund-raising dinners in October and February, GOP state finance chairman Don L. Wolfsberger said Thursday.

Agnew will address a $100-a-plate dinner in St. Louis Feb. 10. Other Republicans expected to attend the affair include Missouri Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth, St. Louis County Supervisor Lawrence K. Roos, St. Louis Aldermanic President Joseph Badaracco and others.

Highlighting a $100-a-plate affair in Kansas City Oct. 16 will be Rep. Gerald A. Ford, R Mich., House minority leader. The dinner will honor the memory of former President Eisenhower whose birthday anniversary is Oct. 14.

Wolfsberger said Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., will keynote a similar Eisenhower memorial dinner the same day at Ozark.

"Indications are that there will be capacity houses for all three affairs," the finance chairman said.



BUILDINGS ARE REACHING skyward as progress abounds at the Kingsway Plaza Shopping Center. Plans call for the center to be complete by April 1.

Censorship Probe Denied by U.S. Command

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command denied today it is investigating charges that the Armed Forces Radio and Television network is censoring war news for American troops in Vietnam.

The command said a cable to an Ohio congressman meant it was making a "comprehensive review" of the situation of a soldier formerly on the network's news staff, not of the soldier's censorship charge.

Rep. Chalmers P. Wylie, R-Ohio, said Wednesday in Washington the cable was a reply to his query about Spec. 5 Michael Maxwell of Columbus, Ohio, who asked to be transferred from the network's new staff because, Maxwell said, war news was censored.

The U.S. Command spokesman said the cable read: "A comprehensive review of the situation is under way and you will be further advised as soon as possible."

The spokesman said that several days later another cable went to Wylie which read: "On or about Sept. 7, Specialist Maxwell made a specific request to be relieved from his assignment as war news editor ... Specialist Maxwell is reported to have objected to editorial policies concerning war news. In consonance with his request, Specialist Maxwell was assigned to a different branch on 17 Sept. 1969."

How Business Spurs Progress

Dr. Kershner

IN a day in which an increasing number of people appear able to think of progress only in terms of government action, it is good to know that business in America is actually implementing methods of encouraging progress. One method is the suggestion plan. Bonuses are offered to employees who originate ideas that can eliminate waste or improve efficiency of production; or whose ideas contribute toward smoother operations or safety measures.

Today, an organization known as The National Association of Suggestion System, devoted to propagating suggestion plans, has approximately 1,200 firms belonging to it. There are 20 chapters in the U.S. and Canada, and 19 members located in foreign countries.

Employees of corporations have received awards for suggestions in amounts varying from a few hundred to thousands of dollars. The largest award ever made in the history of suggestion systems was presented in October, 1968, by the IBM Corporation, in the amount of $75,000, to one of their tecnnicians. In the last five years, IBM has awarded more than $10 million to company employees for suggestions that cut costs or improved products or procedures.

While the motive for offering bonuses was to inspire ideas useful to the company, these awards do constitute a sharing of wealth with ingenious employees. And it's significant that they are provided voluntarily by the corporations who participate in the suggestion plan.

There were various forms of guaranteed annual wage plans long before the unions began agitating for them. These plans were instigated voluntarily.

Three worthy of mention are plans established by Proctor and Gamble in 1923, George A. Hormel and Company, in 1927, and Nunn-Bush Shoe Company in 1935. They guaranteed work for 40 hours per week and 52 weeks a year, and the plan was not subsidized by either state or federal government.

Except for the suggestion plan, most of these plans have been classified as "fringe benefits" paid to employees out of profits. As means of opening opportunities and sharing of profits with employees, they offer a factual refutation of the myth that capitalism "exploits" labor.

Let's not forget that the private enterprise system has flourished because of political freedom, and that political freedom is the complement of economic freedom. The one cannot endure without the other.

Meet Sikeston's Teachers. W. Z. Baker is the head of the vocational agriculture department here. He has filled that position since the department was established in July, 1948. # Blast Foes Fear Bigger Ones Later

WASHINGTON (APA) — Opponents of the big nuclear test on Alaska's Amchitka Island not only object to Thursday's planned blast, but look with apprehension at bigger booms that may follow.

Unofficial reports have tests in the five-megaton range, possibly related to Spartan missile warhead evaluation, contemplated for the tiny Aleutian island located well into the Pacific from the mainland.

The largest tests to date by the Atomic Energy Commission at its Nevada testing grounds have been in the one megaton range—the equivalent of a million tons of TNT.

Congressmen from Alaska, Hawaii, California and nongovernment scientists joined Monday in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee saying the Thursday test could be disastrous, perhaps causing earthquakes and tidal waves.

Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, sent a letter to President Nixon asking postponement of Thursday's test until a nongovernment panel of scientists studies the question and approves. Several other congressmen share Gravel's position.

Committee chairman Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., acknowledged reports of five-megaton blasts on the schedule and said, "they'll stop when they produce an earthquake. If they don't have one at five megatons, they may go to 10."

Separately, an AEC spokesman said test shafts, enough for at least three tests, have been drilled on Amchitka. "Thursday's test will verify if other tests can be conducted safely," he said without elaborating.

An AEC commissioner, Clarence Larson, told the committee Amchitka is one of two supplemental testing sites. The other is in central Nevada, chosen because of an absence of people and high-rise buildings. The main site at Mercury, Nev. is too close to Las Vegas.

Larson allowed there was a faint possibility Thursday's megaton range blast, which should register about 6.5 on the Richter scale, could cause a sympathetic shock of the same size at detonation. The 1964 Good Friday quake in tremor-prone Alaska registered 8.4, killed 113 and sent a 12-foot wave as far south as Cresent City, Calif.

Larson was backed by about a dozen government specialists who testified in the main that there was little chance of radioactive leakage at Amchitka, little effect on the island's ecology and any test shock would probably not be felt at population centers 200 miles distant. If there is a wave reaction it will be about three feet high at the site and dissipate rapidly, they said.

Washington Report
by Symington

By STUART SYMINGTON

SYMINGTON CITIES DANGER OF CONTINUED WATERSHED DELAYS

In many rural American communities, the future of economic development, as well as productivity of the land, depend on the construction of watershed projects and other soil and water conservation measures.

However, severe limits on Federal soil and water conservation funds have brought to a near - standstill the planning and construction of watershed projects in Missouri and elsewhere.

MISSOURI. So far, local sponsors in 64 Missouri watershed areas have applied for assistance under the watershed program (Public Law 566). Of this number, 15 have been approved for construction, one has been finished, 17 are authorized for preliminary planning, and 7 are in the final planning stage. An additional 18 are on a growing waiting list of projects which cannot enter the planning stage because of lack of funds. Also backlogged are projects for which plans are completed but for which no construction money is available.

In fact, projects are entering the planning stage at a rate of only 2 or 3 per year; and at this speed planning of the 248 watersheds in Missouri, elegible under Public Law 566, would take 100 years or more.

BUCK AND DOE RUN CREEK. The Senate and House Agriculture Committees have just approved for construction the Buck and Doe Run Creek Watershed in Lewis and Clark Counties. However, even though Congress has approved enough funds for this and other projects, special administration limits on the Soil Conservation Service will probably result in a long delay before final work can begin.

LOCAL SUPPORT. In this case, as with all other watershed projects, local citizens, the county courts, the local soil and water conservation districts, worked long and hard to develop their project Work Plan. The local citizens are ready to do their share for the Buck and Doe Watershed, the plans have been approved, but, unfortunately, Federal funds are too limited to build this and many other projects.

Many Missouri applications for watershed assistance were not made until recent years because our State was slow to start its watershed development program. More recently, as a result of the fine work of Howard Jackson, Missouri State Conservationist, and many others, there has been a growing interest in watershed construction. We hope that interest will continue until funds are available.

INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION. Soil and water conservation projects in Missouri have already resulted in the expansion of 139 industries or businesses located in rural areas. An additional 15 industries have expanded because of watershed protection work.

Therefore, these programs should be given higher priority so that long-delayed projects can move forward at a reasonable pace.

Mother Overtakes Driverless Car Near Playing Children

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Mrs. James W. Murphy dashed barefoot out of her house, overtook a driverless car rolling out of control and stopped it just short of five small children at play, three of them her own.

"I don't think I could do it again," the 30-year-old mother said. "All I had in mind was keeping that car from running over those children."

Mrs. Murphy looked out of her kitchen window Tuesday afternoon and saw the car roll across her lawn. She caught it about six doors down.

"I dont't know how I got into that car," she said. Mrs. Murphy managed to steer it away from the children, then set the brakes.

The children went on playing, unaware of their narrow escape. Mrs. Murphy said she returned home and collapsed, totally exhausted. "I'm sure God was with me," she reflected.

Blonde Not Train Blamed for Dip

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Mr. Fox boarded a train so crowded that he was unable to find a seat, which made him grumble more than the train rumbled. That is, until a comely blonde was shoved right up against him. In fact, if she had been any closer, she would have been behind him. As the train swayed back and forth, Mr. Fox and the blonde brushed against each other causing them to exchange frequent embarrassed smiles.

What the unfoxy Mr. Fox didn't realize at the time, however, was that the blonde was as light-fingered as she was light-headed.

Upon leaving the train, he discovered that the blonde had stolen his wallet and he sued the railroad company for his loss.

"The railroad company was careless is permitting the train to get so crowded," he complained in court. "It was the crowded condition that enabled that blonde to get close enough to me to lift my wallet.' "Mr. Fox lost his wallet," retorted a representative of the railroad company, "not because of our carelessness, but because of his own. He shold have been watching his wallet instead of the girl. And if he was going to watch the girl, he should have watched her more closely."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, Would you require the railroad company to make good Mr. Fox's loss due to the deceptive blonde?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the railroad company could not be held liable for Mr. Fox's lost wallet unless he could show that his pocket was picked as the direct result of the overcrowding. In this case, concluded the judge, the theft could have been more the result of the sway of the blonde than the swav of the crowded train.

Billion-Bushel Use of Soybeans Forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department predicts a record billion bushels of soybeans will be used domestically and exported during the marketing year which began on Sept. 1.

The outlook was made on the basis of large soybean stocks and lower prices, officials said in a report.

Prices paid to farmers for the new crop probably "will average near" the government price support loan rate of $2.25 a bushel for No. 1 soybeans, compared with the average of $2.42 paid for 1968 production, the department said.

Nixon administration farm officials decided last March to lower the price support loan rate on No. 1 soybeans to $2.25 a bushel for the 1969 crop, about 30 cents less than last year. The action was needed, they said, to make the crop more competitive in the market.

Soybean acreage and production has increased dramatically since World War II and total supplies for 1969-70 were estimated at a record 1,377 million bushels, about 10 per cent more than last year.

This year's crop was forecast at 1,055 million bushels, only slightly less than the record 1,080 million harvested in 19608. Total acreage rose 2 per cent this year but the prospective yield is 1.3 bushels an acre less.

Carryover soybean stocks on Sept. 1 totaled 322 million bushels, compared with 156 million a year earlier. The Commodity Credit Corp. owned or controlled more than 90 per cent of the carryover and began selling part of its inventory.

Through late September, officials said, the CCC had sold about 30 million bushels.

Soybean crushings this marketing year were expected "to rise well above" the 606 million bushels of 1968-69 because of strong demand for soybean meal and oil.

"Lower U.S. prices for soybeans and expanding overseas demand are expected to boost soybeans well above last season's 287 million bushels," the report said.

The report also said cottonseed oil supplies for the marketing year began Aug. 1 will be about 1.9 billion pounds, compared with 1.6 billion in 1968-69. Prices this year were expected to average less than last season but more than those for soybean oil.

Cottonseed price support loans were reduced from an average of $48 a ton last year to $37 a ton for the 1969 crop.

Blackwell Says Voters Favor Drive

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A "referendum committee against income tax increase" has been formed, Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro reported today.

The most outspoken foe of the income tax increase urged by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, Blackwell was named chairman of the new committee. He said full committee membership will not be announced until all members have been selected.

He said he has never witnessed such enthusiasm for a campaign.

"The people know already that the Hearnes' income tax increase is as much unneeded as it is unwanted."

The committee has until Jan. 1 to produce the necessary signatures—at least 5 per cent of the voters in at least seven of the 10 congressional districts — to block the Jan. 1 effective date of the increase and to force it to a popular vote test in November 1970.

Blackwell said the committee will have volunteer workers in all 10 congressional districts and said although contributions toward financing the campaign will be accepted they will not be solicited.

Blackwell said petition forms should be available next week and he called for more volunteers.

"Just a little effort now will prevent a great harm to our people in the future," he said.

As finally passed by the special sessio, of the Legislature the bill would boost the personal income tax from a scale of 1-4 per cent to 1-6 per cent and the corporate income tax top from 2 per cent to 5 per cent. Tax experts said it would produce $106 million in 18 months of collections, nearly enough to meet meet the additional $110 million Hearnes has said he will need for the 1970-71 budget.

Pope Urges Catholics To Combat Eroticism

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI called on Roman Catholics Wednesay to combat eroticism, which he said has reached epidemic proportions.

Addressing his weekly general audience, the pontiff said human and Christian dignity is being offended by the "very grave and insidious" threat of eroticism, "which has become epidemic and aggressive, pushed to unbridled and repulsive expressions, public and advertised."

He said the Church wants to bring its message of salvation to society but "is submitted, perhaps as never before, to a pressure of profanity, secularization and amorality."

"Even the most healthy and reserved circles," the pontiff said, are assailed by "eroticism through promiscuity, pornographic photographs and then drugs, the exaltation and brutalizing of the senses, vile and cursed expressions of the word of God."

Impact of Easier Welfare Sends Costs Upward

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The impact of easier welfare qualifications and higher benefits showed again in August, the Division of Welfare reported Wednesday.

The changes became effective July 1 but their full effect was not felt until August when an increase of nearly $370,000 in cost was experienced. In July the increase was nearly $350,000 so the overall boost is around $700,000.

One of the big causes for the rise, aside from higher maximum benefits, was a U.S. Supreme Court decision that residency requirements are no longer valid. In the past Missouri has required that a welfare recipient must have been a resident of the state at least a year.

Here's what happened to the programs individually between July, when the first impact was felt, and August when the full brunt reached the welfare pocketbook:

Old Age Assistance — Total August cost of $6,957,036, up $242,003. There were 94,061 persons on the rolls, up 566, and the average grant was for $76.66, up $2.25.

Aid to Dependent Children— Total cost of $3,640,767, up $190,767. The rolls included 115,519 mothers, unemployed fathers and children, representing 31,692 families. That was an increase of 2,488 individuals or 711 families. The average payment per person was $31.52, up $1, or $114.88 per family, up $3.52.

Aid to the Permanently and Totally disabled — Total cost of $1,405,469, up $35,287. The rolls included 18,258 persons, down 35 but the average grant was for $78.29, up $2.11.

One-Year Reprieve Granted Draftable Graduate Students

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has granted a year-long reprieve to draftable graduate students, faced with possible induction at the end of the fall semester.

Following a recommendation of the National Security Council, the White House had told the Selective Service System to keep hands off graduate students until the end of the academic year.

About 10,000 draft-age graduate students will be affected by the policy change, presidential press secretary Ron Ziegler said. He stated flatly the new policy will be followed, although the change came in the form of a recommendation rather than a decree.

Dry Weather Damages Fall Tree Colors

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The first signs of autumn are appearing in Missouri's woodlands, the State Conservation Department reported today, but the main show is still 10 days to two weeks away.

Every year the department's foresters issue regular reports on the advance of the autumn color show. Today's was the first of the new season.

Exceptionally dry weather in much of southern Missouri has caused many oaks to change abruptly from green to brown, skipping the colorful middle stages of red and yellow.

Conditions in most of the northern half of the state have been right so far and could produce the sort of change that draws nature lovers from far off.

Four Non-stop Flights Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board's Bureau of Operating Rights recommended today giving Ozark Airlines authority to operate non- stop between Minneapolis- St. Paul and Des Moines, Iowa, between Minneapolis - St. Paul and St. Louis, Mo., and between St. Louis and Des Moines.

Bureau counsel Peter G. Wolfe told CAB Examiner Thomas P. Sheehan, in a brief, that all three routes can support competitive nonstop service.

Wolfe said grant of authority to the other applicant, Delta Air Lines would deprive the board of an opportunity to reduce the need of a local service airline for subsidy, and would benefit fewer passengers than would an award to Ozark.

Grain Market

Hopes Rise for Change In Hanoi POW Policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Vietnam's willingness to see wives of imprisoned U.S. servicemen is being viewed here as a hopeful sign Hanoi may be re-evaluating its prisoner of war policies.

Pentagon officials also indicate belief the North Vietnamese move is a reaction to a Nixon administration campaign to focus international attention on the handling of American POW's.

This assessment came after North Vietnamese diplomats in Paris said Tuesday that would receive a new group of American women seeking information about husbands missing the war.

Only a few days earlier the North Vietnamese delegation had for the first time met with four other American wives from Dallas, Tex., trying to find out whether their husbands are dead or alive.

While North Vietnam's attitude toward such private meetings may prove to be of no significance, any sign of movement on the POW problem is encouraging, Pentagon officials say.

"They have had an indefensible world position," commented one official involved in day-today dealings with POW matters. "It has been not only wrong but also not smart. Now they may be looking for a way to ease themselves out of the fire."

North Vietnam may be holding as many as 900 Americans, most of them fliers shot down during the air war. The number is uncertain because Hanoi steadfastly has refused to provide a name list—an act which violates international agreements.

The Pentagon's official list of captured men totals 413 but there are 919 names on the missing list and many of those are believed imprisoned.

For a time, especially in the months preceding the opening of the Paris negotiations, the United States avoided making any possibly inflammatory public comments about North Vietnam's attitude on the prisoner issue, fearing the captured men might suffer, officials explain.

But with passage of time and no success in Paris, the U.S. changed almost to a "what-have -we-got-to-lose" attitude.

With Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird leading the way, American officials have begun castigating the North Vietnamese, focusing on four major demands that:

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong identify prisoners they hold.

—Release the seriously sick and injured men.

—Permit impartial inspections of all prisoner of war facilities.

—Permit the free exchange of mail between prisoners and their families.

California Quakes Injure 24 and Knock out Power and Gas Lines

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP)— At least 24 persons were injured by two earthquakes that ruined two houses hee Wednesday night, knocked out electrical power and broke gas and water mains.

No fatalities were reported.

A third tremor, milder than the first two, was recorded between 5:27 and 5:28 a.m. today.

The last quake in Northern California to cause much damage hit Daly City, near San Francisco, in 1957. It had a richter rating of 5.7. There was a 5.8 quake at Hollister in 1961, although not as much damage resulted.

The tremors centered at Santa Rosa, 60 miles north of San Francisco, but were felt as far south as Gilroy, 75 miles south of San Francisco.

A 20- foot wide section of brick wall fell from the third story of the Miramar Bar to the street, heavily damaging a parked automobile.

Pacific Gas & Electric Co. said electrical power was off for eight minutes in the city of nearly 50,000 residents. The utility called in emergency crews and had 50 men shutting off leaking gas mains. One small fire was extinguished before there was serious damage.

Water from broken pipes caused damage in one department store.

Injured persons were taken to three hospitals in the Santa Rosa area. Most suffered cuts caused by broken glass, although there was one report of a broken neck.

One house was jolted four feet off its foundations and another was so badly rocked that it probably will have to be demolished.

Seismologists at the University of California in Berkeley said the first quake was at 9:56 p.m. and the second at 11:19 p.m. and that both registered at between 5.5 and 5.6 on the Richter scale.

The Richter scale is logarithmic, each higher number representing 31 times the energy of the preceding number.

In 1906, the San Francisco earthquake registered at 8.25.

Police, California highway patrol officers and Sonoma County sheriff's deputies sealed off a 15- square block area in downtown Santa Rosa to stop an outburst of looting through broken windows in a number of stores.

Jake Horner, Civilian Defense chief, told of seeing three 50-foot high metal flag poles, which were 10 feet apart, whipping so strongly they hit each other.

"They were really clanging," he recalled.

Countdown for Aleutian Nuclear Blast Continues Despite Chorus of Protests

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Despite a chorus of protest the countdown continued for the U.S. nuclear test today in the remote Aleutians.

On windswept Amchitka Island, 1,400 miles southwest of Anchorage, scientists and technicians readied monitoring devices and television cameras to record the one- megaton blast, equal to the detonation of one million tons of TNT.

Although some scientists feared the big blast might trigger an earthquake and tidal wave, "We are very optimistic of a safe and successful experiment," Robert Miller, operations manager for the Atomic Energy Commission, told newsmen Wednesday.

International objections to the test reached a climax with demonstrations along the U.S. - Canadian border involving more than 7,000 students in British Columbia alone. Spersons were arrested by police at the Ambassador Bridge between Windsor and Detroit.

The explosion was scheduled for 6 p.m. EDT.

The AEC said weather conditions appeared favorable for the observer planes set to fly over the desolate, 42- mile - long Aleutian island 700 miles from the Soviet Union's Kamchatka Peninsula.

The nuclear device was buried 4,000 feet below the tundra in a shaft drilled in a solid volcanic rock. Twenty-eight miles away about 130 persons gathered in a concrete bunker to check the effects of the explosion.

One television camera was zeroed in on a known earth fault that cuts through the island. Another was focused on a pen of seven sea otters 4,500 feet from the blast site to record the effect on the animals.

Pens on the beach 14,000 feet away from the test contained more sea animals.

Other observers were on the carrier USS Princeton, two destroyers and a number of research vessels.

First after - blast examination of the ground around the site was expected late Thursday or Friday, depending on conditions.

Fears of an earthquake and tidal wave similar to the 1964 temblor that claimed 113 lives in Alaska and caused damage around the Pacific rim prompted most of the objection to the blast. Other opponents simply oppose the explosion of nuclear devices.

The AEC conceded the possibility of an earthquake, but said the chances were minimal.

Japan and Canada- both damaged by the 1964 quake- filed formal protests with the U.S. government. Canada said it would submit a bill for any damage.

Scores of others, both in and out of government, have voiced objections.

Gov. Keith Miller said again Wednesday he believed the test safe and necessary for the country's security.

Meet Shows Cracks in Unity of Moslem World

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The recent summit conference of Moslem leaders in Morocco groped for areas of unity, but it served also to illuminate differences which divided the Islamic world.

Kings, presidents and ministerial delegates of 24 predominantly Moslem nations met at Rabat primarily to discuss an event which made the Islamic world shudder with indignation: the fire in Jerusalem's Al Aksah Mosque, one of Islam's holiest shrines. They also planned to discuss Israel's annexation of what had been the Arab section of Jerusalem.

Such Arab and Moslem conferences in the past have run into conflicting national interests among the states represented, and into clashes involving differences among Arab leaders themselves.

Islam, one of the world's greatest religions, has more than a half billion members around the world. It predominates in many nations occupying a belt all the way from North Africa's Atlantic coast to Southeast Asia. The term "Islam" derives from ARabic roots meaning peace and submission to divine will. But Islam has known little peace.

The Koran, the body of revelations of the Prophet Mohammed, regards war as abnormal and a last resort. But Islam's history is dotted with conquests and holy wars for most of its 1,300 years. The Sword of Islam swept all across north Africa into Spain, into Scutheast Europe and Central Asia. That was Arab conquest. Arab decline began four centuries ago.

Moslems -- the word means surrender to Allah -- spread as far east as sprawling Indonesia, where Islam is the official religion. There are Moslem minorities, some big, some tiny, in most of the world's nations. Soviet Central Asia and Red China's Sinkiang and Yunnan, for example, have big Moslem minorities.

Arabs predominate in lands with a total population of more than 100 million. Little Lebanon is carefully balanced politically between its Christian and Arab populations. Algeria is made up of Arabs and non-Arab Berbers. Arabs of the north dominate the bracks of Sudan. There are many Arabs in East Africa. Nations where Arabs predominate are Iraq, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Muscat-Oman and the sheikhdoms, Yemen, Jordan, Syria, the United Arab Republic, Libya, Algeria, Tunisia and Morocco.

Non-Arab Moslem states have in excess of 300 million population. In addition, India has 60 million Moslems, more than most of the other nations with Islamic majorities. Principal non-Arab nations where Moslems predominate are Pakistan, Indonesia, Iran, Afghanistan, Malaysia, Mauritania, Singapore, Tansania, Turkey, Somali and Senegal.

Complications arise because some Moslem nations have relations with Israel, which others regard as their worst enemy. Israel has diplomatic relations with Iran, Malaysia, Mauritania, Singapore, Tanzania, Turkey, Somali and Senegal, but not with any of the Middle East or North African Moslem Arab nations. In addition, Israel has cordial relations with India, but lacks them with Pakistan, Indonesia and Afghanistan.

Lack of unity among the Arab states themselves has become celebrated over the years since the first Arab-Israeli conflict of 1948 - 49. This disunity has stood in the way of a Zionist state.

Though Islam provides the Moslem nations with a strong unifying factor, political oneness among them seems even less likely than over-all Arab unity.

Nixon Pressed to Drop Haynsworth

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has come under mounting pressure from his own party in the Senate, reportedly including the GOP's No. 2 leader, to pull back his nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth to the Supreme Court.

Congressional sources indicated that Senate Republican Whip Robert P. Griffin suggested to the President during his Tuesday meeting with GOP congressional leaders that Haynsworth's name come down.

A spokesman for Griffin declined Wednesday either to confirm or deny the report. The spokesman said Griffin considered any conversation he had with the President as strictly confidential.

Griffin spearheaded the successful fight last year against President Johnson's attempt to appoint Abe Fortas chief justice.

There was no doubt other Senate Republicans were anxious to see the appointment of Haynsworth, now chief judge of the 4th U.S. Court of Appeals, withdrawn.

The only Negro senator, Massachusetts Republican Edward W. Brooke, Wednesday released a letter he had written to Nixon urging the President to withdraw the nomination or face an "embarrassingly" close vote and possibly even defeat.

Brooke became the first Republican senator to publicly urge withdrawal of the name and the first senator of either party to actually predict the nomination might be defeated.

Brooke declined to say how many committed anti-Haynsworth votes he came up with in his own nose count.

But he said he had found a substantial number of Republicans willing to break with tradition and go against their President.

"It's more than any five or six, I'll tell you that," he said.

An aide to Brooke put the total somewhat higher, saying "more than 10, or enough of a trend so the vote could be very substantial."

It was understood that Brooke acted without consulting the Senate Republican leadership and had hoped to jar some colleagues, who have been privately critical, into taking a public stand.

One that spoke up right away, was New York's Charles Goodell, currently the Senate GOP's leading maverick.

"A bold and courageous move," said Goodell who stopped short of seconding the call for withdrawal or even pledging his own vote against Haynsworth.

There was no immediate comment from the White House on the Griffin report or the Brooke letter.

However, there were various reports about Nixon's reaction to Griffin's suggestion.

Three Escape Greenville Jail

GREENVILLE — Wayne county police and the highway patrol are on the lookout for three young men who escaped from jail here last night. They broke the bars in a jail window, the state patrol said today.

The three are Danny Wayne DeBerry, 18, presumably from Dexter, charged driving while intoxicated; Billy Strange Jr., 18, Williamsville, and Fred Dexter Smith, 21, address unknown, charged with auto theft.

The trio were believed to have hitchhiked and to be on foot.

U.S. Combat Toll Hits 2-Year Low

SAIGON (AP) — The lowest weekly combat toll among Americans in two years was announced today by the U.S. Command, reflecting a three-week lull on the battlefield.

An official summary said 95 Americans were killed in action during the seven- day period ending at midnight last Saturday- a drop from 135 the previous week and the lowest weekly toll since the week ending Aug. 12, 1967, when 82 Americans died.

While the American death toll decreased, South Vietnamese troop casualties rose from 297 to 308 last week. Since the week ending May 10, South Vietnamese casualties have been consistently higher than American combat deaths, which many officials say is a result of "Vietnamizing" the war.

Telephone Rate Hike Approved

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Public Service Commission today granted Southwestern Bell Telephone company permission to boost rates sufficient to produce increased annual revenues amounting to a little over $30 million.

Last Nov. 15 when the utility requested higher rates, it proposed an increase of $44.5 million a year. Under the new order apparently the rates will amount to two - thirds of those originally planned.

Under the original proposal the rates for one- party residential service in St. Louis and St. Joseph would be increased 80 cents a month, and in Kansas City 75 cents a month.

Vote Yes to Create Jobs, Beaird Urges

James Beaird, president of the Chamber of Commerce, expressed concern today about a lack of jobs that results in the loss of young people to other areas.

"It is reported that 45 per cent of the graduates of the Sikeston public Schools enroll in college," he said. "If our young people leave Sikeston to acquire employment in another area, then we lose our investment in them and we also lose their purchasing power. We also lose the leadership they can provide in community activities."

His statement was made during an interview on the Oct. 21 vote on a proposal to issue $600,000 in industrial revenue bonds to build a manufacturing plant for Keystone Consolidated Industries, Inc. The firm has announced plans to open a National Lock factory.

With this in mind, Beaird said, "Oct. 21 is one of the most important dates in the history of our city. Many communities throughout the country would be thrilled with the opportunity to vote overwhelmingly for a proposition to bring new jobs to their community. The degree to which we approve this revenue bond issuecould well determine the future of our community. It behooves every citizen to get behind this important project."

He said a vote for the issue will show new and old industry that Sikeston appreciates the hundreds of jobs that have been made available through the years.

"I have faith and confidence that Sikeston will give the revenue bond issue the greatest margin of victory that has been given to any project that has been before us. What Sikeston does, does make a difference," Beaird said.

Seven Hurt in Three Accidents

Three highway accidents resulted in seven injuries Wednesday.

James David Marshall, 42, Steele, driver of a 1967 Ford pickup truck, collided with a 1958 GMC tractor trailer, driven by George Middleton, 33, Risco, the state patrol reported.

The accident occurred Wednesday at 2:10 p.m. on route U, four miles west of Caruthersville.

Brakes of the Middleton truck apparently failed, causing his vehicle to slide into the path of the Ford pickup, the patrol said.

Marshall received a fractured right leg and was taken to a Memphis hospital.

Middleton received a bump on his head and was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial hospital in Hayti, for observation.

Four received minor injuries at 8:05 a.m. on a township road one half mile west of Cardwell.

A 1969 Ford pickup truck driven by Floyd Arthur Estopy, 62, Rector, Ark., and a 1969 Ford, driven by Anna Marie Clark, 26, Cardwell met at an intersection. The Estopy pickup truck was struck in the right side by the Clark car, causing the Clark car to leave the road and strike a utility pole.

Mrs. Clark received cuts and bruises. Three children in her car, David Dillon, 7, Dawn Dillon, 6, and David Clark, 5, all of Cardwell, received minor injuries.

All were treated at a Cardwell clinic.

George Stevens, 65, Annapolis, was injured at 4:45 p.m. on highway 34, one mile west of Patterson.

He was driving a 1965 Chevrolet pickup truck when he lost control while speeding around a curve. The truck ran across the road, struck a utility pole, and went through a fence.

He received a concussion and was taken to the Doctors hospital in Poplar Bluff.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
UNATTENDED CHILDREN COURT DISASTER

Do you sometimes risk the lives of your children by leaving them home alone?

According to the National Fire Protection Association, about one of every three children who died in fires this year was not under competent, mature supervision at the time of the tragedy. Thus several hundred young lives are taken annually.

As a parent, never - never! - leave your children alone at home.

When you go out, take the youngsters with you, leave them at the house of someone you know and whose judgment you trust, or choose a reliable, intelligent person to babysit in your home.

Make it clear to the "sitter" that you expect her - or him - to stay awake and alert, keep children from activities which could be dangerous, and be on guard for suspicious noises, odors, heat or other indications of an emergency situation.

Show your babysitter through the house and explain your family fire escape plan with its pre-determined alternate routes out of each room - especially the bedrooms.

Post important telephone numbers - fire, police, doctor, and the number at which you can be reached.

Emphasize that in case of fire her first job is to get everyone out of the house safely and keep them out. Then make sure she knows how to summon the fire department by using a neighbor's or a public telephone or the fire alarm box.

Remember that "luck" is the poorest babysitter of them all.

"Call them secret sessions, not executive meetings," says Bernard Lyons, Port Huron (Mich.) Times publisher. "We find that readers don't really understand what an executive session is. But they sure understand what 'secret' means."

Right.

And we believe consistent reporting that secret sessions are being conducted beats passing "open meeting" statutes all to hollow. Win the statute and reporters will still be battling closed sessions. But tell the public that their elected officials are meeting in secret, and forces go to work that make laws seem puny by comparison.

PAPER GOLD IN THE MAKING

The annual meetings of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund begin in Washington on Monday (Sept. 29) and run through the following Friday.

Paper gold will come from the meeting of free world money men in Washington. Approval is all but assured of a new system of international accounts. The 112 International Monetary Fund governors, who are typically finance ministers of the member nations, will vote on a proposal that was started at a meeting of the money men in Rio de Janeiro two years ago.

The plan calls for creation of Special Drawing Rights (SDRs) designed to "meet the need, as and when it arises, for a supplement to existing reserve assets." An amendment to the IMF Articles of Agreement was worked out last July by the so-called Group of Ten, linking the Common Market nations (except Luxembourg) with the United States, Britain, Canada, Japan, and Sweden. Switzerland also joined in the meeting.

Pierre-Paul Schwitzer, French managing director of the IMF, on Sept. 24 formally asked his board of directors to "activate" nearly $10 billion in Special Drawing Rights in the next three years. Approval by the directors in Washington is considered a pro forma exercise.

The SDR is a new form of currency that will never be minted. It has no backing except the faith of the world's trading powers. SDRs will supplement gold as the ultimate resource fo;purchasing foreign currencies. This will be their only real value, as it is gold's only real value.

The drawing rights will apply to a special fund to be established within the IMF. They will be distributed, in annual amounts, to all IMF members in porportion to their quotas or subscriptions in the fund. A nation's quota is based on its population, volume of world trade, and national income.

Schweitzer proposes a distribution of $3.5 billion in SDRs the first year and of $3 billion each in the two succeeding years. The United States would get a little more than $700 million the first year. Critics of the SDRs scheme have called it morally unacceptable, inasmuch as the biggest share of the new drawing rights would be earmarked for the world's wealthiest countries.

The new government of France, forced by speculators to devalue the france, has formally endosed the plan for the creation of SDRs. Under President De Gaulle, French money men had criticized the paper gold scheme as a dangerous device. But the French cabinet on Sept. 24 authorized Finance Minister Valery Giscard D'Estaing to support the establishment of the new international paper currency.

On the same day, Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger ordered the closing of West German currency markets to stop speculation on the upward revaluation of the D-Mark soon after Sept. 28 elections. Hobart Rowen, financial editor of the Washington POST, reports that what the influential countries at the IMF meeting "really want is a 'dignified way' for the German mark to be appreciated."

Europe has rather successfully weathered recent devaluations of the British pound and the French franc. Looking forward, the TIMES of London states: "Sterling has suffered as much as any other currency, and more than most, from the rigidities of the present (world monetary) system, and it is in Britain's interest that the system should be improved." Indeed, it is in the interest of all trading nations.

THE WILSON DISABILITY

"The President is paralyzed." These were the words used 50 years ago Thursday, Oct. 2, by the White House physician after examining President Woodrow Wilson. The President had been brought back to Washington hastily a week earlier after collapsing from physical and emotional exhaustion at Pueblo, Colo., during a country-wide tour to win popular support for the League of Nations.

After his October 1919 stroke, Wilson was for many weeks incapable of transacting official business. "Nor for months," states the DICTIONARY OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY, "could he undertake any effort, physical or mental, that required initiative." Until his term of office expired in 1921, Wilson lived in a sick-room, emerging only for recreation or purely formal occasions. He died, "tired of swimming upstream," on Feb. 3, 1924.

The issue of presidential disability raised by the Wilson tragedy, and by a series of illnesses to President Eisenhower, was not satisfactorily settled until two years ago. The 25th Amendment to the Constitution, providing for continuity of presidential responsibilities in the event of presidential disability, was formally certified on Feb. 10, 1967, following ratification by the required 38 states.

If the President informs Congress that he is unable to perform his duties, the Vice President will become Acting President until the President can resume his responsibilities. If the Vice President and a majority of the Cabinet, or other body designated by Congress, find the President to be incapacitated, the Vice President will become Acting President until the President informs Congress that his disability has ended. Congress is given 21 days under the Amendment to resolve any dispute over the President's disability. The difference between 50 years ago and now is that the government can deal effectively and quickly with a health crisis that could paralyze not just one man but a whole nation.

By GEORGE MOSES
Associated Press Writer

As a native North Dakotan, I am forced to admit that the image of my state leaves something to be desired.

Foreigners—that is, non-North Dakotans—few of whom have ventured into the state, regard it as a bleak, barren, treeless Siberia where it gets 100 below in the winter, 200 above in the summer, and snow drifts are mistaken for mountains.

(Fellow North Dakotans: I know it's not true.)

Persons seeking work with The Associated Press who have indicated on their applications a willingness to work "anywhere," have even recoiled at a job offer in my home state, saying by "anywhere" they meant "anywhere but North Dakota."

It has remained for an old newspaper colleague of mine, Ferd Froeschle, now advertising director for a big manufacturer tucked away in a tiny North Dakota town, to set them straight.

Tongue firmly in cheek, Froeschle has prepared, as a gimmick for his employer, a "Modern Guide to North Dakota." Whether it boosts sales for the Melroe Co. of Gwinner, which makes front-end loaders and the like, it is likely to cause a stirring in the graves of such legendary North Dakota folk heroes as Gen. George Armstrong Custer and Sitting Bull.

Froeschle's guide, a booklet replete with wood-cuts, goes like this:

"You've been wondering if it's true about the howling blizzards and the 40-below zero temperatures and the dust storms and the Indian massacres ... Of course it's true. That's what keeps out the riff-raff."

He lists historic dates:

"1851—First North Dakota post office was established at Pembina, Fur traders promptly began complaining about ZIP code service."

"1874—First U.S. Weather Bureau established at Bismarck. First annual weathermen's picnic rained out."

"1966—First 200 milliwatt lignite-fired steam-powered electric plant went on the line. About 48,000 kerosene lanterns went on sale the next day."

"1968—Melroe Manfacturing Co. changed name to Melroe Co. Only two employes could spell 'manufacturing' and they were sick a lot."

Historical notes from the guide:

"Legend has it that the Vikings may have entered the Red River Valley ... in one of their explorations. Lending credence to the theory was the finding of dozens of Copenhagen snuff cans along the river bank."

"Railroad service—Northern Pacific ... and Great Northern ... compete ... especially in the area of which one can block a street the longest time."

Points of interest:

"Ft. Ransom historical site—Two saloons and the Sons of Norway Hall. Clientele is interchangable."

"Red River Valley—So fertile discarded hubcaps have been known to grow roots."

"North Dakota State University—located in Fargo. No. 1 small college football team in the nation. Over past few years, NDSU's Pennsylvania football players have consistently beaten U. of North Dakota's Pennsylvania football players. State U. also has classes."

"Bald Hill Dam—north of Valley City. One of several North Dakota flood control dams operated by the U.S. Army Engineers for the purpose of creating floods at their own convenience."

"Continental Divide—Not your usual, run-of-the-mill, north-south Continental Divide. In North Dakota, it runs crossways, giving the state a sort of Oriental flavor and a bad list to starboard."

BEER CAN: AID TO SCIENCE

Oceanographers are using a revolutionary new method to study undersea geology off the coast of Baja California, Mexico-digging up flip-top beer cans.

According to the Newsletter of the National Oceanographic Data Center, beer cans, which had been thrown overboard by Mexican fishermen, were found buried under several inches of sediment.

Since the scientists know the approximate dates when flip-top cans first appeared in the area, they can easily determine the rate at which sediment is building up on the ocean floor.

The new technique is called "beerography."

H.L. Hunt Says

CZECHOSLOVAKIA, ONE YEAR LATER

On August 21, 1968 an invading army led by the Soviet Union and including troops from Poland, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria marched into Czechoslovakia, elimination eliminating the few tentative stips toward freedom that had been taken by the Dubcek government.

Now, one year later, the Czech people have still not "adjusted" to the new, more tyrannical regime that has taken over. If anything, they are even more resentful and dissatisfied.

A young woman in Prague told a reporter: "It still hurts us all over even to think about everything that has happened. You should have seen how lively and optimistic we were before August," the month of the invasion.

Many Czechs have chosen to abandon their homeland rather than live under Soviet control, exercised through puppet Premier Gustav Husak. Approximately 50,000 Czechoslovaks have already left their homeland.

One of those who left, a 22-year-old automobile test driver settling in Austria, explained: "It could be decades before we get another chance at the freedoms we had last year."

These freedoms were lost because the Soviet Union cannot affort to allow the states it controls to gain independence of the Kremlin. Twice in less that 15 years, first in Hungary and then in Czechoslovakia, Soviet troops have brutally put down attemps to fight free of the Moscow stranglehold.

The Czechoslovaks still remember the progress toward liberty they had make before the invasion and hold fast to that memory in their hearts. In contrast to many persons in the free world, they are not likely to be fooled by any talk of Soviet "mellowing." HLH

Washington - Merry Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON --Only the most indiscreet racketeer would set up operations on the home grounds of the FBE, the Federal Narcotics Bureau and several stern congressional investigating subcommittees.

Yet a dapper, wavy-haired New York mobster, described in confidential government files as "A trusted member of the mafia inner circle," recently opened an expensive apartment in midtown Washington and paid a year's rent in advance.

This has led federal agents to wonder whether the mafia, which has stayed clear of Washington in times past, may now be moving into the nation's capital.

For not only has enrico "Harry" Tantillo, a notorious mafia figure, rented a Washington apartment, but other gangsters reportedly are offering mafia figure, rented a Washington apartment, but other gangsters reportedly are offering mafia money

For not only has enrico "Harry" Tantillo, a notorious mafia figure, rented a Washington apartment, but other gangsters reportedly are offering mafia money to Washington businessmen caught up in debts.

The cosa nostra has used the loan racket to take over legitimate businesses in Chicago, New York City, New Orleans and many other cities. But Washington, where businessmen are often only a walk away from the FBI office or Capitol Hill, had been thought free of mafia shylocks.

The 53-year-old Tantillo left his previous haunts in the bronx allegedly to oversee the dope trade in Washington. He is known to be associated with "Big John" Ormento and Innocenzio "John the Bug" Stopelli, two of the Nation's major heroin traffickers.

Tantillo was picked up along with more than 30 others in a district of Columbia drug sweep. Agnets were frankly startled to find such a big fish in their net. They claim to have found a half-kilogram of cocaine in his apartment, according to a bond-hearing statement of assistant U.S. Attorney Harold Sullivan. The cocaine is worth some $120,000 on the street.

The brazenness with which the mafia drug case developed, as recorded in filed affidavits, has shocked federal agents accustomed to a mafia-free capital city.

Tantillo selected an apartment, for instance, only a few blocks from the FBI,narcotics bureau, and metropolitan police headquarters. He also chose the fashionable hotel America for meetings with carmine "Chow Mein" paladino, now under indictment with him in a New Jersey federal narcotics case. All the while, the hotel happened to be housing narcotics bureau trainees from all over the U.S.

Note: The well-dressed Tantillo, who ran a pastry shop along with his narcotics business, is well known to law enforcement emn. His arrest records date back to 1935, including possession of a revolver, obstructing justice, influencing a witness and previous narcotics violations. Confidential government files also charge that he "supplies wholesale quantities of heroin" to underworld customers.

NASSER TO NIXON

Egypt's President Nasser sent a message last month to President Nixon asking what the United States would do for his country if Soviet influence should be reduced.

Apparently the suspicious Nasser had been listening to rumors that his long-truste Conrade, Aly Sabry, had been dealing behind his back with Moscow. Nassar might even have feared that Moscow was conspiring to install Sabry in his place.

Nixon's reply to Cairo didn't go much beyond warm words and general assurances. Therfore, Nasser let it be known that the U.S. reply was completely unacceptable.

ELEEMOSYNARY STORY

Under manager Ted Williams, the Washington Senators baseball team has just completed its first winning season in low these many years. Overlooked in all the happy, howling crowds at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium, however, were the wounded Vietnam veterans and other hospitalized soldiers who used to get free box seats for the games.

The new club managers handed out only general admission tickets to the patients at Washington's Walter Reed Army Hospital. Men in bandages and with crutches were obliged to hobble to the top of the great stadium to watch the games from the highest bleachers. Because the soldiers in wheelchairs couldn't make it, they were allowed to park their wheelchairs precariously on the ramps.

Explained Oscar Molomot, the promotion manager: "We are a business, not an eleemosynary institution. Seats are our stock in trade like coats on the rack in a clothing store.

Although he couldn't afford to let wounded veterans sit in the box seats, he offered this column free tickets for next season.

GROMYKO AND KISSINGER

After President Nixon's recent speech at the United Nations, White House Aide Henry Kissinger buttonholed Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and asked him what he thought of the speech.

Gromyko fended off the question, saying he didn't think of a speech as good or bad. Since he was preparing to deliver his own speech the following day, he promised that he would "try to be constructive tomorrow."

This was the reason,Kissinger replied, that the United States "tried to be constructive today."

Later Kissinger introduced Mrs. Shirley Temple Black, the former child movie star, to Gromyko. Although Mrs. Black has spoken against the United Nations in her California political campaigns, President Nixon has now appointed her to our un delegation. Gromyko, the diplomat, told her politely that the U.S. delegation would be "all the more powerful" because of her presence.

Advice to Nixon:
Confidential Reports to Labor Chiefs Reveal Strategy For Driving GOP From New Power

By Victor Riesel

Atlantic City, N.J.: -- The amateur painter, labor leader George Meany, sent some professional political advice to the amateur pianist, Richard Nixon, the other day. The labor president opined he knew how the American President could rool up several million additional votes in the next election.

"We know the President's secret," Mr. Meany observed to Labor Secretary Shultz at dinner in Washington one recent night. "(Mr.) Nixon shoots 120 on the golf links. Now, why keep that score quiet? If the President made it public he'd get another two or three million to vote for him."

Four days later Mr. Nixon went out to the Eisehower putting green with some pros, and in public, missed a short putt by two feet. There may be no relationship. But it could be that President Nixon is taking no chances on the Republican Party losing the 1970 to 1972 election.

Neither is AFL-CIO President Geroge Meany, leader of the thousands of delegates to the Eighth Constitutional Convention which speaks for 13.6 million members. He'll give no advice to Mr. Nixon -- just warning.

Regardless of what's out front here, the big story is in the intense preparations for smashing the smooth Republican campaign machinery Mr. Nixon has welded. Mr. Meany says bluntly that "so far as labor is concerned the congressional election year of 1970 is when the chips are really down."

There will be no broadside clobbering of Mr. Nixon -- but he will be fought on all issues, all decisions which the AFL-CIO believes are not pro-labor.

This will be prelude to the final campaign to drive Mr. Nixon from the White House because his administration "is not oriented, or not sympathetic to labor needs."

Judging from reports -- some secret, some shyly public -- prepared for the delegates, the movement is prepared to spend millions checkmating President Nixon's personal effort to put Congress in Republican hands.

The reports, prepared by the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE), reveal its strength in documents stating that COPE registered four million new voters in 1968.

In the final weeks of the presidential campaign, COPE put 100,000 volunteers into its network of headquarters in a last minute push to re-elect Humbert Humphrey. Thus, with the Democratic Party splintered, snarling and gossamer in many states, Mr. Humphrey would have been America's first "labor president" had he defeated Richard Nixon.

Mr. Humphrey will acknowledge this during his visit here -- and he comes to this seaside traditional convention city with Minnesota's labor pledge to his '70 Senatorial campaign.

It will be a field day for "HHH." Mr. Nixon turned down the AFL-CIO Convention invitation. Secretary of State William Rogers agreed to come -- and then sent his regrets.

It may be just as well. Many of the delegates, especially in the building and construction trades union ... the movement's establishment -- are bitter over the White House decision to cut back 75 per cent of federal construction. The construction industry is the land's biggest and federal, state, county and municipal building makes up a third of the $90 billion flow of money into the field.

Furthermore, though the rest of the nation has overlooked one of President Nison's warnings on inflation, the building trades union chiefs and delegates have not. They know Mr. Nixon told governors, mayors and other governmental unit executives that "I strongly urge state and local government ot follow the example of the federal government by cutting back temporarily on their own construction plans. The degree and promptness with which they respond to this plea for partnership in action will be watched carefully.

"If the response proves insufficient, I shall need to restrict the commitments for construction that can be financed through federal grants."

This warning means that Mr. Nixon will cut back even more -- and thus hit at tight manpower markets -- and overtime. There are other differences with the administration. The opening of craft union memberships to tens of thousands of black workers on a "quote" or "goal" basis.

Thus there is convention table talk about "teaching the administration a The convention's political machine is oiled and in high gear. There is an 8-part, 40-page fantastically detailed confidential COPE report which leaves nothing, absolutely nothing, to the high command's imagination. It covers everything from local legislative races to future gubernatorial campaigns. Every state and every nook of each state is discussed.

The pages on New York State, for example, report that Ted Kennedy's brother- in- law Steve Smith still thinks seriously of running against Gov. Rockefeller. The California chapter tells labor's high command that the state's House Democratic leader Jesse Unruh is ahead of San Francisco's Mayor Alioto in the poll covering that '70 gubernatorial race. And that Gov. Reagan is thinking of running against Sen. George Murphy. And that California's traditionally unruly Democrats seem headed for another suicidal primary for both top offices..."

Like Mr. Nixon, this convention is lowering its voice. But make no mistake. It's like old times. Labor wants a friend in the White House, not a neutral-- to quote an old phrase of Arthur Goldberg.

Ann Landers

A Guy, Proud of Good Looks, Is Balding

Dear Ann Landers: The old cliche, "Everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it," is no longer true. A privileged segment of society, the scientists, ARE doing something about it and they should be sued for billions.

During the past 20 years the weather patterns of the earth have been drastically altered by excessive numbers of man-made disturbances such as rockets, missiles, bombs and other damned fool objects which have been let loose in space on a perpetual basis. Man's tinkering with the elements of nature have produced hurricanes, floods, tornadoes, blizzards and even earthquakes.

The lives and property of millions of innocent, defenseless people are being jeopardized by these idiots. Someone should call a halt to this dangerous program of weather corruption before civiliation is erased from the face of the earth. Please print this and wake up America! — Warren, Ohio

Dear Warren: Meteorological scientists tell us the amount of energy released in the atmosphere by man-made devices is infinitesimal compared to the energy produced by nature.

Historians have recorded violent weather — blizzards, tornadoes, earthquakes, floods and hurricanes ar far back as the first written word. Man suffered from destruction of the elements long before "the nutty scientists began to send damned fool things into space." What we can and SHOULD do somthing about is the idiots who are polluting the water and fouling the air. WAKE UP, AMERICA!!

Dear Ann Landers: This is my second marriage and I thank God every night for this wonderful man who rescued me from a living hell and made me whole again. Not only has Geroge been like an angel to me but he has been wonderful to my two small children.

Although I am in fairly good health I am haunted by the fear that if I should die, my first husband will take the children. He refuses to allow George to adopt them legally — not because he loves them, but because he wants to be obstreperous. He started to beat the children before they were old enough to walk. This was one of the principal reasons I divorced him.

Is there a way out that I do not see? Please help me. — Uptight

Dear Up: The lawyer who obtained your divorce is your best bet. See him at once. Perhaps he can give you the peace of mind you seek.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a male, 22, considered good looking and am well built. The problem: I'm beginning to lose my hair and I hate the thought of being bald.

I've tried everything form onion juice to sheep dung. Nothing helps. What do you know about hair transplants? Do they work? Does a fellow have to find his own donor or does the doctor do that? Please give me some information. I'm ashamed to talk to anybody. — Yul II

Dear Yul: Hair transplants have proven successful. A fellow does not have to find a donor, he's his OWN donor. The hair is transplanted from the back of his neck to the bald areas.

This procedure is not inexpensive and it is time consuming. But for those to whom hair is important, it can be a godsent.

How far should a teen-age couple go? Can necking be safe? When does it become too hot ot handle? Send for Ann Landers' boodlet, "Necking And Petting — What Are The Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

A Bit from Him, a Bit from Her, Combine for Best-for-Both Look

LOOK-ALIKES ... This fall's "He & She" looks, look alike, but "He" is not "She." The shirts by Shim, the pants by Lynn Stuart for Mister Pants and the riding-type boots by Hush Puppies are all similar, but not identical. His pants are less flared than hers, have vertical pin stripes instead of horizontal ones like hers. Her riding boots have higher heels and a wider strap and buckle than his. The scarf she's wearing could easily become an ascot for him.

THESE BOOTS BORROW ... New "He & She" boots borrow from each other, but don't copy. The woman's boot is taller, and the man's boot has pull straps. Both Hush Puppies styles are in brushed pigskin and both have buckles and straps.

CHAIN ORNAMENTATION ... These companion styles feature chain ornamentation for both men and women. But the chain is proportioned specifically to complement the sex for which the shoe was designed.

"Please don't call it Unisex," plead some of the designers of look-alike clothing for both sexes.

"He and She" tells better what it's all about — the companion looks favored by 1969's young couples.

"Who says they want to look and dress exactly like each other?" asks Phoebe Hodges, fashion coordinator for Hush Puppies shoes. "They simply want to borrow ideas from each other, such as chains on shoes, buckles, scarves, pants silhouettes and shirt stripings which are equally applicable to dresses as well as the new vivid men's shirts."

For instance, she points out, he might wear a paisley scarf as an ascot. She might wear the same paisley scarf around her head, her waist or neck.

He might wear a bold buckle on his belt, and she might wear the same buckled belt or adapt the idea for her shoes.

He might select brushed (suede ) pigskin boots because of the soft look and easy care, and she might decide that brushed pigskin boots are just what she needs.

He might wear one of the newer bold shirts and she might then decide to buy one, too, or to adapt the fabric into a shirtwaist for herself.

Today's "He & She" looks range further and more imaginatively than some past wear-alike practices, such as when women bought pink shirts in men's departments in the early 1950s or, more recently, when men and women tucked coins in the bands of loafer shoes.

The new dimensions of today's "He & She" looks reflect new elements of today's life styles.

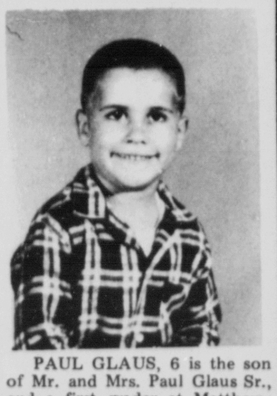
"Since men's clothes have recently become so much more exciting, it's inevitable that women now are borrowing more and more from men's wear," says Miss Hodges.

The way in which youths and young-marrieds spend time together also is a fashion factor, she points out.

"On Saturdays youths all over the country meet in shopping malls, instead of the corner drug-stores of yesterday. Dating couples often shop together, each being exposed to what's available to both.

"And today's young marrieds shop together for almost everything — food, furniture and fashions — unlike their parents.

"In their fashion looks, today's youths don't want to obliterate the difference between sexes. They simply are reflecting the fact that they have a healthy respect for exchange of ideas between sexes, in and out of the classroom, in and out of the home," sums up Miss Hodges.



PAUL GLAUS, 6 is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Glaus Sr., and a first grader at Matthews school, Sikeston.

Alcindor to Memphis

Atlanta and Lew Alcindor, er, the Milwaukee Bucks, meet in the preseason's final game in Memphis at the Mid-South Coliseum, October 11, and more than 12,000 fans will come out just to see if what they've heard about Lew Alcindor is true.

Buck' Coach Larry Costello says he's everything and more.

"He has great talent," Costello said recently after watching his rookie in a workout. "I was a bit worried about his stamina, but he's shown me that he can take it. We told the guys who were guarding him to work him over. They did and he took all they could dish out."

One of those who guarded him, Dick Cunningham said, "I noticed a great improvement in Alcindor from one workout to the next. He learned how to over power people. I thought he was a little weak at first, but he's more aggressive already."

Alcindor, too, thinks he can make the adjustment from college to the pro ranks.

"It will take me time, but I think I can make the transition. I know the schedule is longer and tougher, and the players are bigger and stronger, but I'm ready for the challenge. That's what makes life so interesting, the challenges," Alcindor said.

Tickets to the Lew Alcindor, er, Milwaukee Bucks- Atlanta Hawks Game went on sale Monday (September 29).

"We did not intend to put tickets on sale until the day of the game because of our season ticket drive. However, due to the tremendous demand for tickets to the Alcindor game, we changed our minds." Darrel May, Director of Basketball for mid- South Sports Action, Inc., mused.

Tickets are available at the Mid- South Coliseum and at Goldsmith's Central Ticket Office.

Cards Still Battling

The war has been lost but the battle goes on for St. Louis' stubborn Cardinals.

The deposed 1968 National League champions kept alive their hopes for a share of third place in the East Division Wednesday night by nipping Philadelphia 6-5 on rookie Ted Simmons' run - scoring triple in the ninth inning.

St. Louis, an early casualty in the division title race following two consecutive peannants, trails the third place Pittsburgh Pirates by one game in the league's last undecided contest going into tonight's season finale against the Phillies.

The Pirates stayed in front with a 5-4 nod over Montreal, rookie Al Oliver delivering the winning run with a ninth inning single. They take on the expansion Expos tonight in their season windup.

Elsewhere, left-hander Claude Osteen posted his 20th victory as Los Angeles topped Houston 5-2 under the lights after New York's East Division kings shaded the Chicago Cubs 6-5 in 12 innings and San Diego rocked San Francisco 9-4 in day games. Atlanta, the West Division champion, was idle.

In the American League, Baltimore took Detroit 2-1 in 10 innings; Minnesota bowed to the Chicago White sox 4-3; Washington edged Boston 3-2; the New York Yankees slipped past Cleveland 4-3; Seattle nudged Oakland 4-3 and Kansas City blanked California 6-0 in a rain-abbreviated five-inning contest.

Rookie catcher Ted Simmons turned in an eleventh-hour, game-winning performance for the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night. His two-out triple in the ninth inning gave the Cardinals a 6-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Once again Joe Torre at first base was the only veteran in the lineup, seeking his 100th rbi of the season.

The Cardinals close their season against Philadelphia tonight.

Simmons, a switch hitter just turned 20, was rookie of the year this season for the Cardinals Tulsa, Okla., farm club of the American Association.

The Cardinals got their other runs in the second inning, two on Joe Hague's second home run of the year. Rookie shortstop Jerry Devanon accounted for two runs in that inning with a single.

Rookie starters Reggie Cleveland of St. Louis and Jeff James of Philadelphia were driven off the mound. Joe Hoerner, 2-3, was the winner in relief and Lowell Palmer, 2-8, was the loser.

Rickie Allen was the big Philadelphia gun, with a run - scoring double in the first inning and a fifth-inning single that scored two of the three runs tallied in the inning.

The Cardinals start Bob Gibson in tonight's season windup. Gibson is 19-13.

Unbeaten Indians At Evansville Saturday

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Southeast Missouri State College takes to the road Saturday for an 8 p.m. game in the Reitz Bowl at the University of Evansville, Ind.

Evansville, coached by James Byers, will be out to get back on the right track after a 14-8 loss last weekend to Indiana State University. The Purple Aces opened their season with a comfortable victory over Bradley University.

Southeast Missouri will be going after win number three. The Indians squeaked by Delta State College 7-6 in their opener, then dumped Jacksonville State University 19-13 Saturday.

The win over Jacksonville was a costly one, however, as it resulted in injuries to junior running back Al Holmes of St. Louis and freshman defensive back Jim Powell of Webster Groves.

Powell is lost for the season, while Holmes is out for a couple of weeks at the least.

Indian Head Coach Tom Thrower will most likely stat Claence Finley, a 182- pound junior from St. Louis, in place of Holmes. Getting the nod for Powell will probably be Herman Williams, a 175-pound sophomore from Petersburg, Va.

Evansville and Southeast Missouri have met eight times previously with he Indians winning six, including the contest last year when the margin was 22-8.

Despite this longterm success and despite his team's unbelmished record so far this fall, Thrower views Saturday night's opponent with a great deal of respect.

"They've got the best team they've had in four years," he declared, "and they have an especially good passing attack. We expect them to throw the ball a lot."

Evansville's passing attack is run by junior quarterback Craig Blackford of Tell City, Ind., who last week completed 19 of 38 for 211 yards. Five of the tosses were caught by junio speedster Doug Atherton of Evansville, who is also the Purple Aces' top rusher.

He gained 92 of the 95 yards which Evansville had on the ground against Indiana State. A touchdown dash accounted for 50 of them.

Defeinsively the Purple Aces are led by Gerald Seib, a 215- pound linebacker from Evansville, and they have experience at every position except safety and left end.

For their prt, tne Indians have a pretty good passing attack also, led by senior Greg Schroeder of St. Louis, who this year has completed 27 of 50 attempts for 336 yards and one touchdown. Their top rusher to this point has been Holmes, who has averaged 5.7 yards per carry.

Women Golf Notes

Twenty one women golfers played eighteen holes of golf on Tuesday to end the current season.

Tuesday also concluded the Ringer Tournament which has been in progress for the last month. Composite scores showed the winners to be: Mary Bain won the championship flight with a score of 71; Betty Dawson with a 76 was second and June Watson third with 77.

In flight one the winner was Doris Stepp 78; Tatty Tope second with 82 and Evelyn Warf 82.

Flight two was won by Henrietta Ferrell 85, followed by Doris Wyle 93 and Thelma Bush 93.

Jeanette Lathom and Mary Kellett were winners in flight three.

Margaret Baber was guest winner.

For the past year the rules and regulation for the club - have been in the process of being revised. On Tuesday, the club voted to accept the revision.

Mary Kellett gave the year's report of the finance department.

The secretary gave some of the year's highlights. Included were some "spoofs" and some notes and scores from minutes of the club in 1955- 1957 and 1960.

Pictures of the winners of 1960 were on exhibit.

Eight members of the current club have been members since 1955 or longer.

Betty Mitchell was chairman of the nominating committee. Officers for next year are Martha Graff president; Henrietta Ferrell vice president; Jean Lee, secretary; June Watson treasurer; Evelyn Warf tournament chairman; and Mary Bain, handicap chairman.

Betty Mitchell and Doris Stepp are the prize committee and Lucille Miller is hostess chairman.

The main event of the day was the awarding of the two coveted prizes that are the goals of the golfers for the year.

The Regina Myer trophy, donated by Mrs. Meyer for some years, is awarded to the golfer with the lowest 15 scores for the year. This year's chairman, Betty Dawson, was the winner of the beautiful silver tray.

The Buckner Ragsdale trophy donated by Mrs. Lough, is awarded to the golfer showing the greatest improvement. The winner this year, recipient of a silver ice bucket is Mary Bain. Mary has had a spectacular year of golf and richly deserves the award.

A golf jacket was presented to the retiring president, Mrs. Dawson, as a thank you for doing such a fine job as leader of the club.

Organized golf is over but the beauty of autumn is just beginning and the new part of the golf course bordering the city park is a spot of beauty.

This is a splendid time to try some of your unused clubs and shots that need practice. Then when the sunshine of next April comes you will be ready to go out in search of pars, birdies and even an eagle now and then.

Mizzou...Inviting Target

COLUMBIA — Mizzou and Michigan -- two look-alike football teams in offensive exeuction -- slug it out in an intersectional brawl at Ann Arbor Saturday afternoon.

It's the first meeting between the two clubs since 1959-- when Dan Devine's second Tiger squad escaped fm Michigan Stadium with a 20-15 win on Bob Haas' one- yard quarterback sneak with just two seconds left on the clock.

There was 2:48 to go when the Bengals took the kickoff and swirled 78 yards behind Haas, a reserve quarterback drafted from he defensive unit. The dramatic win spoiled "Bump" Elliot's coaching debut.

Now Elliott's successor, Bo Schmebechler, is in his first year as Wolverine boss -- and Mizzou's mission looks just as perilous this time around.

Michigan, you see, has bull- whipped two opponents, Vanderbilt and Washington, for 87 total points, and quite apparent is Schembechler's handiwork. The former Miami of Ohio coach switched split end Glenn Doughty to tailback last spring -- and all of a sudden, quarterback Don Moorhead -- a 1968 reserve -- is a wondrous run- and - pass leader.

Bo wasn't exactly starting from scratch either, despite the loss of all- America tailback Ron Johnson and quarterback Dennis Brown, an all- Big Ten choice. He has 33 lettermen back this year off that 8-2 squad that lost its first (California) and last games (Ohio State).

Doughty, a 195- pound breakaway artist, has stepped off 329 yards in two outings. Moorhead at 193 pounds has 231 rushing yards-- with a pair of 100- plus performances -- and his passing threat is just as ominous.

Capt. Jim Mandich, a 6- ft. a 6- ft. 3 and 217- pound broth of an end, is a superior receier -- currently ranking No. 2 on the all-time Wolverine yardage tables.

So Michigan has the talent, all- right, and the inclination to strike a low for Big Ten prestige. Mizzou's bowl win over Alabama, and early- season triumphs over Air Force and Illinois, make the Big Eight invaders an inviting target.

Devine's Tigers can counter with a slashing tailback-- Joe Moore-- whose 185 yards in slightly less than three- quarters of the Illinois game earned the 198- poun junior Back-of - the Week honors in the midlands. Moore has a two-game haul of 315 yards.

Terry McMillan, senior Mizzou quarterback, runs the option best, too, but the Bengal triggerman is far below Moorhead's product Curtis of Michigan is not often fooled.

Last year Curtis intercepted 10 stray passes --nine in league games for a Big Ten record. He was a second team all- America selection.

Missouri won't have Rocky Wallace, all-conference tackle, for the third straight wee -- but fullback Jim Harrison mighmake the travel roster to Ann Arbor. Both have been out with pulled hamstring muscles. Pete Buha, sophomore defensive back is disabled for at least two weeks with a foot sprain.

McMillan, who sprained a toe against the Illini, missed two practices this week-- but was due to start Saturday, backed up by sophomores Chuck Roper and Mike Farmer.

The teams have met just twice pevioulsy, Michigan winning a 1955 match handily, 42-7, on end Ron Kramer's spectacular pass- catching. Devine's record against Big Ten foes is 8-1-1.

BOUGHT HOLE

LEICESTER, England (AP) — The city of Leicester has bought a hole in the ground and now is wondering what to do with it.

British Railways, government-owned, looked around its cupboard and found a 1,796-yard-long tunnel from Leicester to Glenfield, unused. The rail line through it has been abandoned for years.

So BR put it up for sale for five pounds (12 dollars).

City council snapped it up.

Now they don't know what to do with it. One taxpayer wrote in: "Fill it up and forget about it."

Groucho 74 and Still Leering At the Ladies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Happy birthday to Groucho Marx, 74 today and still leering at the ladies.

"Would you pull your skirt down?" he asked a coed as he addressed a collegiate audience this week. "It's very distracting —even at my age."

To another student cutie: "That's a complex question I can't answer here. But if you want to meet me afterward ..."

Groucho was doing insult jokes when Don Rickles was in knee pants and the tongue's still scalpel sharp.

To a fumbling theater man trying to raise Groucho's microphone he complained: "This is really the age of mediocrity. Is this your regular job?"

The students had just witnessed the Marx Brothers' 1935 MGM vehicle "A Night at the Opera." It was the first of 10 screenings of old pictures being presented by the Movie Academy, with a star answering questions after each showing.

The cinema students really dug the old, small-screen riot, applauding Groucho's antics as Otis B. Driftwood, fast-talking king promoter in crouching pursuit of a wealthy dowager.

There were shrieks and applause, too, for his late brothers: wild-wigged, nonspeaking Harpo, the self-taught harpist, and brash Chico, playing a piano with an eloquent forefinger.

Afterward Groucho perched down front on a high stool and answered questions.

He's balding now and almost gaunt.

"I'm a little hard of hearing," he said, asking that a question be repeated.

Was Harpo always silent? "Not when we split the money."

Did the brothers "actually follow scripts?"

"Hardly ... Women didn't understand us very well. We were more for a male audience, at least in the theater ... We discovered early that the best writers were the audience. If they laughed at something, we ieft it in."

Your Dog Ought To Be In Pictures

"You ought to see my dachshund, he's the only dog in the world who smiles all the time."

"I wish you could see the way Candy sits in the chair in the living room with one paw over the arm."

Poised and pointing during a field trial or lazing away another afternoon asleep in the grass, your dog has a characteristic pose that is beginning to be photographed. Why not capture it on film during National Dog Week, September 21-27?

Before you get out your camera equipment, consider what sort of picture you want. Loving dog owners are always watching their dogs' antics, but this time, look for that characteristic pose, the favorite expression, the latest hiding place. Try to find out what holds your dog's attention the longest. What perks up his ears or makes his eyes brighter? Just a bit of study will let you come up with two or three good picture possibilities that reveal your dog's true personality.

Because personality can be a look about the eyes or an attitude of the head, you will want to get in as close as possible to take your pictures. Working at the shortest distance your camera will allow, you should be able to get a good, detailed picture of any large dog. For smaller dogs such as chihuahuas and miniature dachshunds, you will probably need a close- up lens to get you in close enough to take a really telling picture. Even very simple, instant - loading cameras, such as the Kodak Instamatic 134, can be easily and inexpensively adapted to take a close-up shot. Ask your local photo dealer for information on attachments and techniques.

While lining up your pre-planned shots, take a hard look at what your background will be. In a good location that offers a neat, appealing background, lower your camera to the same level as the dog and aim directly at him. If the background seems cluttered and distracting, shift your camera to a higher angle to put a plain grass or carpet background behind your dog. Or hold the camera low and shoot up at the dog. Used outdoors, this low angle will provide a clear blue sky backdrop and will also make your dog look very impressive.

Lighting will determine exactly how alive and three dimensional your dog will appear in his pictures. Backlighting from the sun, for instance, can create an especially flattering, almost halo effect on long- haired dogs. If your dog likes to lie in the sun by a window, grab the opportunity to take a good indoor shot with the available light coming through the glass. When there is not enough natural light, the light from a flashcube can be adapted, too, with layers of handkerchief to subdue the light sufficiently for close- up work.

For a formal, or portrait, type picture set up a shot indoors in the basement or garage. A large roll of colored paper, in a color that contrasts nicely with the puppy's coat, can provide a bright background if suspended from a pipe or a wall so that it runs down and forward under the dog. Laundry baskets, boxes, drawers or even a big handbag are props that can help you keep your puppy in the picture - taking area. For an especially lively pup, find an assistant who is familiar with the animal and can keep him interested in a toy, some food or just some idle chatter while you take the pictures.

Young or old, your dog will look his best if you groom him before you start that shutter clicking. Be sure to brush his coat well and wipe his eyes. A touch of color can be added with a special color or fresh bow.

Whether it is a smile, an attitude or another hole in the ground, something sets your dog apart from all the rest. National Dog Week is a good time to record that endearing difference in pictures.

AFL-CIO Kicks off Convention

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) The AFL-CIO opened its convention today with plans to kick out one union and to raise dues by $4.6 million a year for some 13 million members of the labor federation's remaining 121 unions.

Both actions were linked, at least in part, with Walter Reuther's withdrawal of his United Auto Workers from the federation last year after a bitter leadership quarrel with AFL-CIO President George Meany.

The loss of Reuther's 1.6 million auto workers left a financial hole of about $1 million a year in the federation's income.

The AFL-CIO's 29-man executive council, headed by Meany, voted Wednesday to ask the 1,000 convention delegates to expel the International Chemical Workers Union for joining Reuther's Alliance for Labor Action.

Reuther formed the alliance early this year with acting President Frank Fitzsimmons of the 1.9-million-member Teamsters Union, which was expelled from the AFL-CIO in 1957 on corruption charges.

Ironically, Reuther was a major leader in the fight to oust the teamsters from the federation.

The 110,000-member chemical workers joined the alliance despite Meany's warning that any AFL-CIO union that did so would face expulsion.

The 75-year-old Meany branded the auto workers-teamsters alliance a "hostile" labor organization set up to raid and otherwise compete with AFL-CIO unions.

The proposed dues increase from 7 cents per member per month to 10 cents will add $4.6 million to AFL-CIO income.

The money is used for the federation's programs to organize new workers, lobby in Congress and conduct other business of the nation's labor movement.

In addition to offsetting the loss of auto worker dues, the AFL-CIO needs more money to operate its recently created labor studies center in Washington to train union officials in modern problems facing the labor movement.

In other action, the AFL-CIO executive council urged President Nixon to work to wipe out racial discrimination and segregation in the nation.

"There should be no retreat or compromise," said the council of the labor federation, some of whose unions have themselves been accused of discrimination against Negroes and other minorities.

"God, Have You Gone Your Limit In Love?"

J. Lester McGee, D.D.
Centenary United Methodist Church
Saint Louis, Missouri

I have felt a strong impulse, born of the Holy Spirit I believe, on these December Advent Sundays to go back and lift up some of the much neglected basics in religion. I think there is no better place to begin biblically than with that one verse we all learned first and have never forgotten - John 3:16. And I will use the King James Version, for that is the one we learned. I should like for all of you to say it with me, aloud: "GOD SO LOVED THE WORD THAT HE GAVE HIS ONLY BEGOTTEN SON THAT WHOSEVER BELIEVETH IN HIM SHOULD NOT PERISH BUT HAVE EVERLASTING LIFE." I hope these words have not grown slick with the years, rolling off the mind without jabbing the conscience or stinging the emotions.

And, coupled with that familiar verse, another fine statement of the Apostle Paul: "We are able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth and height and to know the love of Christ which passes knowledge."

I think the Apostle Paul must have read and been familiar with one of my favorite passages of Scripture found in the Old Testament Book of Job. "Can you find out the deep things of God? Can you find out the limits of the Almighty? It is higher than Heaven ... deeper than Sheol... Its measure is longer than the earth and broader than the sea." Someone has well said, "The love of God has a height without a top, a depth without a bottom, a length without an end, and a breadth without a limit."

Paul was continually using odd languages in his treatment of the Gospel of Christ. He borrowed the phraseology of the racetrack, the terminology of the prize - fight, the vocabulary of the army officer. But in attempting to describe the love of God, he remembered his old classroom language and defined the love of God in mathematical terms.

We know that we usually find an unknown quantity by taking the known quantities and a prescribed formula and performing an arithmetical operation. Paul gave us the formula: "The love of God equals the breadth plus the length plus the depth, plus the height," the four dimensions. John gave us all the quantities: "God so loved the world," that's the breadth, "that he gave his only begotten Son," that's the length," that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish," that's the depth; "but have everlasting life," that's the height.

Let's take this formula and these quantities and see what our new math does with it.

"For God so loved the world." No wonder the poet has said that the love of God is broader than the measure of man's mind. But that word "world" is used in four different ways in sacred Scripture. The first way in which it is used is in reference to the material world- the earth, the terrafirma, the rivers and lands and mountains and valleys, the forests and plains. Its more usual meaning, as it was found so frequently on the lips of our Lord and in the Epistles of Paul, was with reference to the forces of evil in the world opposed to God and goodness. The world within a world, the spirit of evil in the world, that which Wordsworth had in mind when he wrote, "The world is too much with us." That which Paul meant when he said, "Be not conformed to this world... Pure religion and undefiled is that a man keep himself unspotted from the world." The third way in which it is used is with regard to the intellectual world, the worldly - wisedness of men in the world.

The fourth way is that employed in John 3:16, the Latin homo, human; the Latin populous, people. This world of sinning, suffering, sorrowing, rejoicing, loving, aspiring men and women, that's the world that God loved. "For God so loved the world," - the populous. Herein is the mystery. This sinning, rejecting, rebelling world as we know it does not seem to be a fit object of His love, yet He loves it. As a child I used to sing that Jesus loves all the children of the world - red and yellow, black and white, they are precious in His sight. God loves the people of the world.

Our world is an ungrateful world. It is a hostile world. It is a sinful world. It is a dead world. Martin Luther once cried in his vivid way, "If I were as Lord God and these vile people were as disobedient as they now be, I would knock the world in pieces." And a poet has said, "If I were God and man had made a mire of things- war, hatred, murder, lust, cobwebs of infamy, intangling the heart and soul, I would sweep him to one side and start anew, I think I would. If I did this would I be God?" And the resounding answer of John 3:15 is you would not be God. This verse affirms the fact that God looked at all the sorry scheme of things and loved it every bit. This foolish, blundering, wayward world is the object of His unending love, for here is a love that is never provincial, exclusive or limited. God loves us not because we are a lovable object but because He is a loving Subject. His love leaps over every barrier to embrace men of every color, nationality and background. National boundaries, color lines, racial prejudices, social distinctions, economic levels and class differences are not recognized in His kingdom. This is one of the amazing basic facts of the Scripture which we often lose sight of - GOD LOVES THE WORLD! And as we remember, Edwin Markham put it this way: "He drew a circle that left me out; a heretic, rebel, a thing to flout; but love nd I had the wit to win, we drew a circle that took him in." "FOR GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD." Where can you find breadth like that?

"THAT HE GAVE HIS ONLY BEGOTTEN SON." That's the length. The test of love accurately and permanently is the length to which it will go. We are living in a day in which people do not accept things as a matter of course. They want proof. They want evidence. They say, "If God loves us as much as you say he does; if God loves the world, let Him prove it." And it would be so easy for God to offer what some men would call proof of His love.

Some people would have Him write His love in the heavens indelibly among the stars as white as the pillow of cloud by day and as radiant as the pillow of fire by night. Others would have Him create a new world with fresh opportunities for all men. Still others would have him alter the external conditions of the universe and make life a primrose path of ease for idle feet. God could do all this and still not prove His love because this would cost Him nothing, it would require no effort.

One of the most amazing passages of Scripture to me, well, it's really several parts of the first chapter of the Book of Genesis, the story of Creation. One time I summed up enough courage to try to preach on it, and I failed so miserably. I just couldn't grasp it.

If you will read the first chapter, the story of Creation, you will discover that seven or eight verses begin with these words, "AND GOD SAID," starting with "God said, 'Let there be light,'" and go on down seven or eight times, "And God said," And God said," "And God said," And everyone of these verses closes with the same words - "AND IT WAS SO." His word is immutable, it is irrevocable. When He says something THAT'S THE WAY IT IS. He would have only to say it. He would have only to lift His finger and ghettos would disappear and poverty would be eradicated, storms and earthquakes would be no more. He would have only to say it. But that isn't the way He created this world and in doing all these things that men would call proof of His love would not be proof, because it wouldn't cost Him anything.

You want to know how much God loves the world and how much God loves you? Then come and stand at the foot of the Cross and look up into the face of a bleeding, dying Savior. God dressed Himself in crimson garments and came down to court the love of men. God would rather die than renounce His love for all men. Don't ask me why He chose that method - I don't know, except that it cost Him something to prove His love. It cost Him His life. It cost Him suffering on the Cross. That's the length of God's love."

"THAT WHOSOEVER BELIEVETH IN HIM SHOULD NOT PERISH." The depth of the love of God is set forth first in the purpose of the Incarnation, in the infinite descent from the presence of God where he was enshrined in glory and majesty, to the depth of shame and desolation and anguish of the Cross. He was truly the joy of heaven to earth come down. He made that descent voluntarily. He made that descent ignominiously. He stopped in gracious condescension until He joined common cause with Man in his deepest dilemma. Don't ask me why God used that Method. All I know is that He has astounded the scholars of all ages by using that method. HE CAME DOWN! HE DESCENDED TO THE LOWEST DEPTHS! The man who uffers physically, the person who is in mental anguish can reach over and touch One who is beside him, for He descended to the lowest depths of mental and emotional anguish. One of the writers, trying to describe his anguish of spirit in the garden, said, "He sweat drops of blood." In this day when we are talking a great deal about poverty and declaring war on poverty, I say our only mistake is in not remembering that there is One who went to an even lower depth of poverty, and if He can be taken into the ghettos, if He can be shared with the poor and destitute, there might be a little more help and encouragement, for He descended to the depths of poverty.

Paul said, "Though He was rich, yet for your sake He became poor that you through his poverty mighty be made rich." You know the old saying, Jesus was so poor he had to borrow a manager from the beast of the field in which to be born. He was so poor every sermon he preached was from a borrowed pulpit, the hillside, a boat, or the lakeshore. He was so poor when he made his triumphet entry into Jerusalem he rode on a borrowed beast. He ate his last meal with his disciples in a barrowed room and when he was crucified they had to bury him in a borrowed grave. He said, The foxes have their holes and the birds have their nests," and the poor have their ghettos, "bt the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head." He also said, "He has anointed me to preach good news to the poor."

And the depth of the love of God is set forth in that this descent was not made exclusively for the flower of humanity, the rare and the lovely creature, but for the one that had gone the deepest in sin, the farthest away from God, the lost, the least, he last - "come let us reason together. Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow." "God commended his love toward us in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us."

When I was in Sikeston a man came to see me. This man was the reprobate of all reprobates so far as my experience has been. Here was a wretched derelict of a wasted life. He came into my study slobbering and crying and pouring out a sordid story. I had heard lots of stories but this one threw me into a momentary trauma. I was sitting there stunned as he poured it out, and, finally, reaching over and grasping the edge of my desk, sensing something of my remoteness from the sordid world in which he had lived, his trembling chin glistening with perspiration, he said, "Preacher, you not listening. You don't understand what I'm talking bout. Preacher, I've been in hell." And I did get hold of myself in time to say, "Well, I admit I have not had any personal experience with this wretched kind of life. However, I do know someone who went to hell to bring you back." And then I was able to lead a startled man to Calvary, that place where men made a hell.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

About a month ago, the Board of Education reduced the school tax rate from $4.42, the rate which was earlier approved by voters of this district, to $4.19. This reduction was made as a result of increases in valuation of taxable property in the county in accordance with instructions from the State Tax Commission.

The tax rate in this school district is above that of some of our neighboring school districts, it is lower than some others. The reason that our tax rate must be set at the present figure is because our valuations per child is very low. The taxable valuation back of each child of this district is about $4,800. There are some school districts in the state that have valuations up to $42 thousand dollars per child. Most of our neighboring school districts have higher evaluations per child than we do. Likely one reason for this is that our district is comparatively small, it doesn't contain much farm land and consequently, the population, centered largely in Sikeston, Miner and Morehouse, is high in relation to taxable property.

Many school districts with considerably higher evaluations per child than we have also vote considerably higher rates. For example, rates in he following school districts are: Caruthersville, $4.87; De Soto, $4.70; Eureka, $4.50; Excelsor Springs, $4.30; Ferguson, $5.17; Festus, $5.65; Fulton, $4.25; Grandview, $5.61; Hazlewood, $5.22; Independence, $4.45; Kinloch, $4.97; Kirkwood, $4.99; Lees Summit, $4.80. Mexice, $4.23; Normandy, $5.19; Pattonville, $4.43; Poplar Bluff, $4.40; Raytown, $5.75; Riverview Gardens, $4.46; Rolla, $4.20; St. Charles, $4.99; University City, $5.42; Webster Groves, $5.20 and Wellsville, $5.47.

Of course, some districts voted lesser tax rates but they can do so because either they do not maintain an educational program of the same quality or more likely their taxable evaluations back of each child are larger than are ours. In some cases, very much so.

It is not the function of the Board of Education to keep the tax rate down, but rather to provide an educational program of the scope and quality that can be reasonably maintained within the financial resources of the school district. We would also remind patrons that the local tax rate can only be established through the approval of the voters. It is not set by the Board of Education. It is recommended by them at the lowest figure which will support the educational program.

When the tax rate is approved, it then becomes the responsibility of the Board, delegated by them to the administrators and faculty, to operate the most effective educational program possible with the funds which are available.

There is very considerable pressure by certain radical student groups and even some politicians, to discontinue the ROTC program (Reserve Officers Training Corps) in our colleges and universities. We think it would be wise for these people to consider the alternatives to ROTC. We have three service schools: the Navy, Army and Air Force Academies. Last year their combined graduating class of ensigns and second lieutenants numbered only slightly over 2,000. As long as our commitments in the world are about as they are now, and there is little chance that they will change appreciably, our services require an input of at least ten times as many new officers as the academies graduate. There is no more expensive education than that of the service academies. ROTC graduates, on the other hand, cost the taxpayer comparatively little. If ROTC were to be abolished, it would be necessary to set up ten or more professional academies or to enlarge the present ones to that capacity. From a cost standpoint alone, this doesn't seem to be very sound economics.

Cost, however, is not the most important consideration. Professional armies, made up only of career individuals, have a tendency to become isolated from the purposes of the civilian population and government. Through history, dictatorships have always been supported by professional or volunteer armies. Almost all of the "coups" or take overs of government are done by professional military organizations. Witness Greece, the emerging African nations and Central and South American dictatorial governments.

Draftees and ROTC graduates generally represent the civilian viewpoint and purposes. They are generally serving for limited periods only. They are at least a semi- part of the civilian philosophy. Their concern is almost always to win, as quickly and effectively as possible, whatever war or conflict they are engaged in and to get back to their civilian activities. Most thoughtful students of government, concerned with a democratic system, believe that the maintenance of ROTC and the drafting of civilians to represent that viewpoint in the armed forces is essential to the preservation of democracy.

Undoubtly, our present draft system is a monstrosity. It is as unfair as it can be. It should, be modified to at least be fair in that every eligible individual has exactly the same chance of being called to duty regardless of economic status, race, etc. as do any of his counterparts. But, the continuation of the draft system, unpopular though it is, would seem in the long run, to be best for the perpetuation of our present system of government.

The Area Vocational School, which our Board of Education maintains for our own students and those of neighboring communities, provides about 70 units of subject matter in a wide variety of trade- technical subjects. A high school student can equip himself, or herself, with the knowledge and skill which will, in most cases, secure immediate employment upon graduation or even better, provide a sound foundation for advanced training in a vocation after high school graduation. The Area Vocational School provides the opportunity for this advanced training with a 13th or 14th year program in trade-technical education. About 70 students are enrolled in the post high school two -year course now. Enrollment is expected to grow as students, both here and in neighboring communities, learn more about this fine opportunity

Although about 136 students from neighboring schools are enrolled in the high school level area vocational school courses, our facilities would accommodate many more. Boards of education in neighboring school districts can send their students, who are interested in vocational training, to the Area School at comparatively small cost to their district. It would be almost economically impossible for many school districts in this area to provide the breadth of program that is offered at the Area School. We find that about 56% of our students are interested in some phase of vocational education, in fact about that percentage are enrolled. We suspect that the same would be true of most Southeast Missouri high schools but the lack of participation by some schools who could give their students this opportunity, indicates that full advantage is not yet being taken of the program offered here.

The school was established to provide vocational education for, not only our school, but the neighboring area. The school gets some federal funds to finance the program only because it is opened to all students. Consequently, we invite and urge that our neighboring boards of education avail themselves of this opportunity and thus to provide their students with the chance to become trained for some vocation, which should be one of the prime goals of education.

We invite boards of education and administrators from neighboring schools to participate as fully as they can in this cooperative program. Those wishing further information may contact Jim Cornett, Director of the Area School, or Roger Sherman, Principal of the Senior High School, for further information. Either, or both, will be glad to meet with interested groups or individuals to explain the wealth of vocational education opportunities available to all students who wish to enroll.

We have all heard the expression "old dogs can't learn new tricks." This certainly doesn't apply to people as we find that all ages are able to acquire additional knowledge or to learn new skills. To prove this, over 400 adults are now enrolled in one or more of the wide variety of classes in the after or evening school program operated by our Board of Education.

---

We think that high schools have too long been influenced by colleges and universities. By that, we mean that a great deal of our educational offerings, the program in general, is dictated by college entrance requirements. In doing this, we often forget that we should be in a much better position to decide what high school students should learn than are the colleges. If we would do a better job of making the curriculum fit the needs of students, the colleges would eventually redesign their entrance requirements to what we teach their prospective students. What else could they do, as they have got to get their students from the high schools.

Several months later a nicely dressed man walked into my student and with a smile grasped my hand, saying: "Do you remember me?" I said, "Well, yor face is familiar, but you will have to tell me." He said, "You remember the man who walked in here one day and told you he had been in hell and you told him somebody had gone to hell to bring him back?" He decalred, "I'm that man!" I said, "Well, you don't look as if you have been in hell lately." He said, "Oh, no, I've been in heaven." His life was now redemmed and cleaned up.

When old Bishop Booth died his nurse said to a friend, "I know where the Bishop is tonight. His soul has gone to hell." The startled friend stood speechless until the nurse explained, "That's the only place he could be happy. There are so many people there. There is so much work to be done there. I know the Bishop must have gone to hell."

Christ was like that. In our old Creed we used to say it, the Presbyterians still say it that way: "He descended into hell," meaning He sought out hell in His hunger for sinful men. He could not stay away from Jerusalem and the Cross.

My friends, this is the paradox of the Gospel, that men who run the farthest from God may actually run into the arms of God. That men who finally hit rock bottom may discover it to be the "rock of ages." That men who crucify the Son of God afresh in the insanity of their sin may yet hear Him say at their own Calvary, "Father, forgive them."

Old Dr. Fosdick used to tell the story of a man who dreamed he fell into a deep pit out of which he could not climb. He called for help and a priest of Confucius passed by and heard his calls, learned over and the man begged: "Please, sir, help me out." The priest of Confucius reprimanded him for falling into the pit. "Sir, when you get out, you be careful, watch your step, lest you fall into another pit." He passed on. The man called again and this time a Priest of Buddha another pit." He passed on. The man called again and this time a Priest of Buddha came by and heard his calls and leaned over and said to him, "If you can climb up so I can reach you with my hand, I'll pull you out." The man could not climb. The priest of Buddha passed by. Then he called again. This time Jesus of Nazareth came by and immediately lowered himself into the pit, put his arms around him and lifted him out. That's why we sing, "From sinking sand, He lifted me; With tender hands, He lifted me; From shades of night, to plains of light, Oh, praise His name, He lifted me."

"For God so loved the world," - that's the breadth; "That He gave His only begotten Son," that's the length; "That whosoever believeth in Him should not perish," that's the depth; "But have everlasting life," that's the height."

God's high and holy purpose is that those who love Him may eventually have eternal life; well, yes, eventually, but not only eventually may now have eternal life. I wonder if we have not rung the changes upon the "everlastingness" of life too much. It is everlasting, make no mistake about that. It is no less that, but it is vastly more than that. This has something to do with more than mere dimensional prolongation of living or existence. Other dimensions are involved which make for solidity and cubical content. The test of living, my friends, is not its duration, its endlessness, its quanitty, though it is all that - rather its quality, the kind of lifyit promises and demonstrates. This is the height of thylove of God, that his man who had been in hell could now live as if to believe he was in heaven.

I remember a story, I don't recall where I read it or what I read it from. It is a simple story, but it did make an impression on me. During the early days of America's life when so many people were coming to these shores, this new country, a young man lived with his widowed mother in one of the European countries and he, too, wanted to come to America. Finally, his aged mother said, "You can go if you will send for me and let me come to that new country and live out my last days." HE made that promise and came to America and settled in one of the Eastern seaboard colonies and began to make his way. He met a young lady who with her parents had come from another part of the world. They fell in love and were going to be married. He had told her of his promise to his mother and asked her if she would write his mother and invite her, because now she might hesitate to come into the home of a perfect stranger. The girl sat down to write the mother and as she wrote she said something like this, "Dear Mother, I want you to know that I love you very much. You may wonder why I can love you never having met you. I love you for many reasons but most of all I love you because you did not keep your son at home."

Now, my friends, we can philosophize all we please. We can go to school and learn all about technology and science. We can become masterful philosophers. We can achieve success in life and become experts and proficient in our various fields, but we must never get away from this simple, basic fact of life which underlies all the success which is ours, without which we could not have this opportunity to achieve so much and become so proficient in our fields of endeavor, the simple fact that we ought to love God because He did not keep His Son at home.

"Lord Jesus, I love thee, I know thou art mine;
For thee all the follies of sin I resign;
My gracious Redeemer, My Savior art thou;
If ever I loved thee, Lord Jesus, 'tis now."

Agnew to Speak At GOP Dinner

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew will highlight the last of three Republican fund-raising dinners in October and February, GOP state finance chairman Don L. Wolfsberger said Thursday.

Agnew will address a $100-a-plate dinner in St. Louis Feb. 10. Other Republicans expected to attend the affair include Missouri Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth, St. Louis County Supervisor Lawrence K. Roos, St. Louis Aldermanic President Joseph Badaracco and others.

Highlighting a $100-a-plate affair in Kansas City Oct. 16 will be Rep. Gerald A. Ford, R Mich., House minority leader. The dinner will honor the memory of former President Eisenhower whose birthday anniversary is Oct. 14.

Wolfsberger said Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., will keynote a similar Eisenhower memorial dinner the same day at Ozark.

"Indications are that there will be capacity houses for all three affairs," the finance chairman said.

BUILDINGS ARE REACHING skyward as progress abounds at the Kingsway Plaza Shopping Center. Plans call for the center to be complete by April 1.

Censorship Probe Denied by U.S. Command

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command denied today it is investigating charges that the Armed Forces Radio and Television network is censoring war news for American troops in Vietnam.

The command said a cable to an Ohio congressman meant it was making a "comprehensive review" of the situation of a soldier formerly on the network's news staff, not of the soldier's censorship charge.

Rep. Chalmers P. Wylie, R-Ohio, said Wednesday in Washington the cable was a reply to his query about Spec. 5 Michael Maxwell of Columbus, Ohio, who asked to be transferred from the network's new staff because, Maxwell said, war news was censored.

The U.S. Command spokesman said the cable read: "A comprehensive review of the situation is under way and you will be further advised as soon as possible."

The spokesman said that several days later another cable went to Wylie which read: "On or about Sept. 7, Specialist Maxwell made a specific request to be relieved from his assignment as war news editor ... Specialist Maxwell is reported to have objected to editorial policies concerning war news. In consonance with his request, Specialist Maxwell was assigned to a different branch on 17 Sept. 1969."

IRON MAIDEN? This new metallic bikini, the latest fashion from Italy, reportedly features the advantage of reflecting the sun's rays.

APPLYING COLOR — Pin or tape the stencil in place on the fabric. Apply textile paint with a stubby stencil brush, stroking on color from the outer edges of the stencil cutout toward the center. By using permanent textile paint and cotton fabrics, the place mats will be washable.

How Business Spurs Progress

Dr. Kershner

IN a day in which an increasing number of people appear able to think of progress only in terms of government action, it is good to know that business in America is actually implementing methods of encouraging progress. One method is the suggestion plan. Bonuses are offered to employees who originate ideas that can eliminate waste or improve efficiency of production; or whose ideas contribute toward smoother operations or safety measures.

Today, an organization known as The National Association of Suggestion System, devoted to propagating suggestion plans, has approximately 1,200 firms belonging to it. There are 20 chapters in the U.S. and Canada, and 19 members located in foreign countries.

Employees of corporations have received awards for suggestions in amounts varying from a few hundred to thousands of dollars. The largest award ever made in the history of suggestion systems was presented in October, 1968, by the IBM Corporation, in the amount of $75,000, to one of their technicians. In the last five years, IBM has awarded more than $10 million to company employees for suggestions that cut costs or improved products or procedures.

While the motive for offering bonuses was to inspire ideas useful to the company, these awards do constitute a sharing of wealth with ingenious employees. And it's significant that they are provided voluntarily by the corporations who participate in the suggestion plan.

There were various forms of guaranteed annual wage plans long before the unions began agitating for them. These plans were instigated voluntarily.

Three worthy of mention are plans established by Proctor and Gamble in 1923, George A. Hormel and Company, in 1927, and Nunn-Bush Shoe Company in 1935. They guaranteed work for 40 hours per week and 52 weeks a year, and the plan was not subsidized by either state or federal government.

Except for the suggestion plan, most of these plans have been classified as "fringe benefits" paid to employees out of profits. As means of opening opportunities and sharing of profits with employees, they offer a factual refutation of the myth that capitalism "exploits" labor.

Let's not forget that the private enterprise system has flourished because of political freedom, and that political freedom is the complement of economic freedom. The one cannot endure without the other.

Blast Foes Fear Bigger Ones Later

WASHINGTON (APA) — Opponents of the big nuclear test on Alaska's Amchitka Island not only object to Thursday's planned blast, but look with apprehension at bigger booms that may follow.

Unofficial reports have tests in the five-megaton range, possibly related to Spartan missile warhead evaluation, contemplated for the tiny Aleutian island located well into the Pacific from the mainland.

The largest tests to date by the Atomic Energy Commission at its Nevada testing grounds have been in the one megaton range—the equivalent of a million tons of TNT.

Congressmen from Alaska, Hawaii, California and nongovernment scientists joined Monday in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee saying the Thursday test could be disastrous, perhaps causing earthquakes and tidal waves.

Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, sent a letter to President Nixon asking postponement of Thursday's test until a nongovernment panel of scientists studies the question and approves. Several other congressmen share Gravel's position.

Committee chairman Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., acknowledged reports of five-megaton blasts on the schedule and said, "they'll stop when they produce an earthquake. If they don't have one at five megatons, they may go to 10."

Separately, an AEC spokesman said test shafts, enough for at least three tests, have been drilled on Amchitka. "Thursday's test will verify if other tests can be conducted safely," he said without elaborating.

An AEC commissioner, Clarence Larson, told the committee Amchitka is one of two supplemental testing sites. The other is in central Nevada, chosen because of an absence of people and high-rise buildings. The main site at Mercury, Nev. is too close to Las Vegas.

Larson allowed there was a faint possibility Thursday's megaton range blast, which should register about 6.5 on the Richter scale, could cause a sympathetic shock of the same size at detonation. The 1964 Good Friday quake in tremor-prone Alaska registered 8.4, killed 113 and sent a 12-foot wave as far south as Cresent City, Calif.

Larson was backed by about a dozen government specialists who testified in the main that there was little chance of radioactive leakage at Amchitka, little effect on the island's ecology and any test shock would probably not be felt at population centers 200 miles distant. If there is a wave reaction it will be about three feet high at the site and dissipate rapidly, they said.

SYMINGTON CITIES DANGER OF CONTINUED WATERSHED DELAYS

In many rural American communities, the future of economic development, as well as productivity of the land, depend on the construction of watershed projects and other soil and water conservation measures.

However, severe limits on Federal soil and water conservation funds have brought to a near - standstill the planning and construction of watershed projects in Missouri and elsewhere.

MISSOURI. So far, local sponsors in 64 Missouri watershed areas have applied for assistance under the watershed program (Public Law 566). Of this number, 15 have been approved for construction, one has been finished, 17 are authorized for preliminary planning, and 7 are in the final planning stage. An additional 18 are on a growing waiting list of projects which cannot enter the planning stage because of lack of funds. Also backlogged are projects for which plans are completed but for which no construction money is available.

In fact, projects are entering the planning stage at a rate of only 2 or 3 per year; and at this speed planning of the 248 watersheds in Missouri, elegible under Public Law 566, would take 100 years or more.

BUCK AND DOE RUN CREEK. The Senate and House Agriculture Committees have just approved for construction the Buck and Doe Run Creek Watershed in Lewis and Clark Counties. However, even though Congress has approved enough funds for this and other projects, special administration limits on the Soil Conservation Service will probably result in a long delay before final work can begin.

LOCAL SUPPORT. In this case, as with all other watershed projects, local citizens, the county courts, the local soil and water conservation districts, worked long and hard to develop their project Work Plan. The local citizens are ready to do their share for the Buck and Doe Watershed, the plans have been approved, but, unfortunately, Federal funds are too limited to build this and many other projects.

Many Missouri applications for watershed assistance were not made until recent years because our State was slow to start its watershed development program. More recently, as a result of the fine work of Howard Jackson, Missouri State Conservationist, and many others, there has been a growing interest in watershed construction. We hope that interest will continue until funds are available.

INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION. Soil and water conservation projects in Missouri have already resulted in the expansion of 139 industries or businesses located in rural areas. An additional 15 industries have expanded because of watershed protection work.

Therefore, these programs should be given higher priority so that long-delayed projects can advance and new projects can move forward at a reasonable pace.

Driverless Car Near

Playing Children

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Mrs. James W. Murphy dashed barefoot out of her house, overtook a driverless car rolling out of control and stopped it just short of five small children at play, three of them her own.

"I don't think I could do it again," the 30-year-old mother said. "All I had in mind was keeping that car from running over those children."

Mrs. Murphy looked out of her kitchen window Tuesday afternoon and saw the car roll across her lawn. She caught it about six doors down.

"I dont't know how I got into that car," she said. Mrs. Murphy managed to steer it away from the children, then set the brakes.

The children went on playing, unaware of their narrow escape. Mrs. Murphy said she returned home and collapsed, totally exhausted. "I'm sure God was with me," she reflected.

Blonde Not Train Blamed for Dip

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Mr. Fox boarded a train so crowded that he was unable to find a seat, which made him grumble more than the train rumbled. That is, until a comely blonde was shoved right up against him. In fact, if she had been any closer, she would have been behind him. As the train swayed back and forth, Mr. Fox and the blonde brushed against each other causing them to exchange frequent embarrassed smiles.

What the unfoxy Mr. Fox didn't realize at the time, however, was that the blonde was as light-fingered as she was light-headed.

Upon leaving the train, he discovered that the blonde had stolen his wallet and he sued the railroad company for his loss.

"The railroad company was careless is permitting the train to get so crowded," he complained in court. "It was the crowded condition that enabled that blonde to get close enough to me to lift my wallet.' "Mr. Fox lost his wallet," retorted a representative of the railroad company, "not because of our carelessness, but because of his own. He shold have been watching his wallet instead of the girl. And if he was going to watch the girl, he should have watched her more closely."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, Would you require the railroad company to make good Mr. Fox's loss due to the deceptive blonde?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the railroad company could not be held liable for Mr. Fox's lost wallet unless he could show that his pocket was picked as the direct result of the overcrowding. In this case, concluded the judge, the theft could have been more the result of the sway of the blonde than the swav of the crowded train.

Billion-Bushel Use of Soybeans Forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department predicts a record billion bushels of soybeans will be used domestically and exported during the marketing year which began on Sept. 1.

The outlook was made on the basis of large soybean stocks and lower prices, officials said in a report.

Prices paid to farmers for the new crop probably "will average near" the government price support loan rate of $2.25 a bushel for No. 1 soybeans, compared with the average of $2.42 paid for 1968 production, the department said.

Nixon administration farm officials decided last March to lower the price support loan rate on No. 1 soybeans to $2.25 a bushel for the 1969 crop, about 30 cents less than last year. The action was needed, they said, to make the crop more competitive in the market.

Soybean acreage and production has increased dramatically since World War II and total supplies for 1969-70 were estimated at a record 1,377 million bushels, about 10 per cent more than last year.

This year's crop was forecast at 1,055 million bushels, only slightly less than the record 1,080 million harvested in 19608. Total acreage rose 2 per cent this year but the prospective yield is 1.3 bushels an acre less.

Carryover soybean stocks on Sept. 1 totaled 322 million bushels, compared with 156 million a year earlier. The Commodity Credit Corp. owned or controlled more than 90 per cent of the carryover and began selling part of its inventory.

Through late September, officials said, the CCC had sold about 30 million bushels.

Soybean crushings this marketing year were expected "to rise well above" the 606 million bushels of 1968-69 because of strong demand for soybean meal and oil.

"Lower U.S. prices for soybeans and expanding overseas demand are expected to boost soybeans well above last season's 287 million bushels," the report said.

The report also said cottonseed oil supplies for the marketing year began Aug. 1 will be about 1.9 billion pounds, compared with 1.6 billion in 1968-69. Prices this year were expected to average less than last season but more than those for soybean oil.

Cottonseed price support loans were reduced from an average of $48 a ton last year to $37 a ton for the 1969 crop.

Blackwell Says Voters Favor Drive

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A "referendum committee against income tax increase" has been formed, Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro reported today.

The most outspoken foe of the income tax increase urged by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, Blackwell was named chairman of the new committee. He said full committee membership will not be announced until all members have been selected.

He said he has never witnessed such enthusiasm for a campaign.

"The people know already that the Hearnes' income tax increase is as much unneeded as it is unwanted."

The committee has until Jan. 1 to produce the necessary signatures—at least 5 per cent of the voters in at least seven of the 10 congressional districts — to block the Jan. 1 effective date of the increase and to force it to a popular vote test in November 1970.

Blackwell said the committee will have volunteer workers in all 10 congressional districts and said although contributions toward financing the campaign will be accepted they will not be solicited.

Blackwell said petition forms should be available next week and he called for more volunteers.

"Just a little effort now will prevent a great harm to our people in the future," he said.

As finally passed by the special sessio, of the Legislature the bill would boost the personal income tax from a scale of 1-4 per cent to 1-6 per cent and the corporate income tax top from 2 per cent to 5 per cent. Tax experts said it would produce $106 million in 18 months of collections, nearly enough to meet meet the additional $110 million Hearnes has said he will need for the 1970-71 budget.

Pope Urges Catholics To Combat Eroticism

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI called on Roman Catholics Wednesay to combat eroticism, which he said has reached epidemic proportions.

Addressing his weekly general audience, the pontiff said human and Christian dignity is being offended by the "very grave and insidious" threat of eroticism, "which has become epidemic and aggressive, pushed to unbridled and repulsive expressions, public and advertised."

He said the Church wants to bring its message of salvation to society but "is submitted, perhaps as never before, to a pressure of profanity, secularization and amorality."

"Even the most healthy and reserved circles," the pontiff said, are assailed by "eroticism through promiscuity, pornographic photographs and then drugs, the exaltation and brutalizing of the senses, vile and cursed expressions of the word of God."

Impact of Easier Welfare Sends Costs Upward

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The impact of easier welfare qualifications and higher benefits showed again in August, the Division of Welfare reported Wednesday.

The changes became effective July 1 but their full effect was not felt until August when an increase of nearly $370,000 in cost was experienced. In July the increase was nearly $350,000 so the overall boost is around $700,000.

One of the big causes for the rise, aside from higher maximum benefits, was a U.S. Supreme Court decision that residency requirements are no longer valid. In the past Missouri has required that a welfare recipient must have been a resident of the state at least a year.

Here's what happened to the programs individually between July, when the first impact was felt, and August when the full brunt reached the welfare pocketbook:

Old Age Assistance — Total August cost of $6,957,036, up $242,003. There were 94,061 persons on the rolls, up 566, and the average grant was for $76.66, up $2.25.

Aid to Dependent Children— Total cost of $3,640,767, up $190,767. The rolls included 115,519 mothers, unemployed fathers and children, representing 31,692 families. That was an increase of 2,488 individuals or 711 families. The average payment per person was $31.52, up $1, or $114.88 per family, up $3.52.

Aid to the Permanently and Totally disabled — Total cost of $1,405,469, up $35,287. The rolls included 18,258 persons, down 35 but the average grant was for $78.29, up $2.11.

One-Year Reprieve Granted Draftable Graduate Students

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has granted a year-long reprieve to draftable graduate students, faced with possible induction at the end of the fall semester.

Following a recommendation of the National Security Council, the White House had told the Selective Service System to keep hands off graduate students until the end of the academic year.

About 10,000 draft-age graduate students will be affected by the policy change, presidential press secretary Ron Ziegler said. He stated flatly the new policy will be followed, although the change came in the form of a recommendation rather than a decree.

Dry Weather Damages Fall Tree Colors

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The first signs of autumn are appearing in Missouri's woodlands, the State Conservation Department reported today, but the main show is still 10 days to two weeks away.

Every year the department's foresters issue regular reports on the advance of the autumn color show. Today's was the first of the new season.

Exceptionally dry weather in much of southern Missouri has caused many oaks to change abruptly from green to brown, skipping the colorful middle stages of red and yellow.

Conditions in most of the northern half of the state have been right so far and could produce the sort of change that draws nature lovers from far off.

Four Non-stop Flights Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board's Bureau of Operating Rights recommended today giving Ozark Airlines authority to operate non- stop between Minneapolis- St. Paul and Des Moines, Iowa, between Minneapolis - St. Paul and St. Louis, Mo., and between St. Louis and Des Moines.

Bureau counsel Peter G. Wolfe told CAB Examiner Thomas P. Sheehan, in a brief, that all three routes can support competitive nonstop service.

Wolfe said grant of authority to the other applicant, Delta Air Lines would deprive the board of an opportunity to reduce the need of a local service airline for subsidy, and would benefit fewer passengers than would an award to Ozark.

Grain Market

Hopes Rise for Change In Hanoi POW Policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Vietnam's willingness to see wives of imprisoned U.S. servicemen is being viewed here as a hopeful sign Hanoi may be re-evaluating its prisoner of war policies.

Pentagon officials also indicate belief the North Vietnamese move is a reaction to a Nixon administration campaign to focus international attention on the handling of American POW's.

This assessment came after North Vietnamese diplomats in Paris said Tuesday that would receive a new group of American women seeking information about husbands missing the war.

Only a few days earlier the North Vietnamese delegation had for the first time met with four other American wives from Dallas, Tex., trying to find out whether their husbands are dead or alive.

While North Vietnam's attitude toward such private meetings may prove to be of no significance, any sign of movement on the POW problem is encouraging, Pentagon officials say.

"They have had an indefensible world position," commented one official involved in day-today dealings with POW matters. "It has been not only wrong but also not smart. Now they may be looking for a way to ease themselves out of the fire."

North Vietnam may be holding as many as 900 Americans, most of them fliers shot down during the air war. The number is uncertain because Hanoi steadfastly has refused to provide a name list—an act which violates international agreements.

The Pentagon's official list of captured men totals 413 but there are 919 names on the missing list and many of those are believed imprisoned.

For a time, especially in the months preceding the opening of the Paris negotiations, the United States avoided making any possibly inflammatory public comments about North Vietnam's attitude on the prisoner issue, fearing the captured men might suffer, officials explain.

But with passage of time and no success in Paris, the U.S. changed almost to a "what-have -we-got-to-lose" attitude.

With Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird leading the way, American officials have begun castigating the North Vietnamese, focusing on four major demands that:

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong identify prisoners they hold.

—Release the seriously sick and injured men.

—Permit impartial inspections of all prisoner of war facilities.

—Permit the free exchange of mail between prisoners and their families.
